BOMB WRECKS NEWSPAPER PLANT AT BELLE CENTER

SEVEN BELIEVED KILLED AS AUTO AND BUS CRASH

10 Brought to Goshen, Ind., Hospitals and 15 Others to Nearby Towns.

THREE DEAD IDENTIFIED

Witnesses Say Car Drove Out of Side Road Into Path of Carrier.

By The Associated Press

GOSHEN, Ind., Aug. 31—At least seven persons were reported killed five miles north of here today in a crash of a heavily loaded transport bus and a sedan. Twenty injured were brought to hospitals here and at least 15 others were reported taken to nearby cities.

Three of the dead were identified as A. G. Carpentier of Iowa City, Ia.; Mrs. James Kelleher of Albany, N. Y., and Raymond J. Buskin of St. Louis.

Carpentier and Mrs. Kelleher were passengers and Buskin was in attendent on the bus.

The accident occurred at the intersection of roads 20 and 15. Witnesses said the sedan drove onto the main highway and crashed into the bus. The vehicle overturned and came to a stop on its top. The sedan was demolished and the bus was damaged badly.

There were about 40 passengers on the bus.

The occupants of the sedan were unknown. A card was found in it, however, bearing the name "Allison Bishopric Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, O." The license plates were Ohio 114AB.

The driver of the bus was Lee Callahan, 33, of Toledo.

The bus was bound from Chicago to Cleveland.

Ambulances from Goshen and Elkhart were rushed to the scene and the dead and injured were hurried to hospitals, making immediate identification difficult.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 31—The Ohio bureau of motor vehicles reported today that license 114AB, car figuring in a fatal collision with a bus near Goshen, Ind., was issued to Allison Bishopric of Cincinnati, for a 1936 Packard sedan.

3 CLOSED BANKS IN COUNTY PAY IN FULL

One in Union County Also in 100 Per Cent List Announced by State.

Three closed banks in Marion county and one in Union county are among 111 in Ohio that have been "cleaned up" since January, 1935, State Banking Supt. S. H. Squire said today as he announced all remaining closed banks with few exceptions will be completely liquidated by the end of 1938.

The three Marion county banks, the LaRue Bank Co., the Morral Banking Co. and the Waldo Bank, and the Union county institution, the Farmers Bank of Martinsville, all paid depositors 100 per cent, according to The Associated Press from Columbus. They were among 13 in Ohio that paid in full.

Plans are now being carried out to complete liquidation of the Commercial bank and the Marion Savings bank before the end of this year.

Mr. Squire said that 79 banks are now in process of liquidation and that 191 were originally in the hands of the department. Only four or five large banks will not be completed by the end of 1938, he said.

"We have had an excellent year in the state banking department and most of our banks will be completely liquidated two years before our original time limit," he said.

U. S. DAIRY FARM IN CHINA DESTROYED

View of stock farm

Pupils Await Reopening Of Schools Next Week

City, County and Parochial Classes Will Be Resumed as Three-Month Vacation Comes to Close.

Public and parochial schools of Marion and the Marion county schools will open next week, bringing to a close a three-month vacation period for thousands of boys and girls.

A few under 10,000 pupils will enroll, a slight decrease under last year, according to a recent school census.

Marion's 17 public schools will open next Wednesday morning and at the same time the St. Mary parochial grade school will open. The Catholic high school classes will start on Monday, Sept. 13. Registering of parochial grade school pupils from second through the seventh grades was done today and on Wednesday the first grade children will register. Parochial high school pupils will register next Wednesday.

County schools will open next Monday and Tuesday, the day of opening being determined by the separate school boards.

Part of Books Free.

Of outstanding interest to the parents of boys and girls in the public schools is the subject of free text books.

This year textbooks will be furnished free to all grade school pupils in the city, and all but history and commercial course textbooks will be furnished in the high school, according to Supt. C. A. Hudson.

Next year, the fourth and last the public schools were given in which to put into operation the free textbook law, all books will be free.

Teachers of history and commercial subjects and school officials have not yet covered either field of books published, and upon their decision will rest the selection of textbooks which will be purchased next year, Mr. Hudson said.

With only commercial studies and history books remaining on the book lists, it means that approximately one-third to one-half of all high school textbooks will be free, Mr. Hudson pointed out.

However, the schools will not furnish supplies. Pencils, drawing paper, rulers, notebooks, crayons, water colors, workbooks and in the high school the laboratory and workbooks required for most courses, must be furnished by the pupil.

Savings To Parents.

Furnishing the textbooks free will mean savings of thousands of dollars to parents. In former years the textbooks for the grade schools have averaged from $2.50 to $3 a pupil, and the high school books have cost the most part of $8.

Twenty-seven new teachers will be among the approximately 200 in the city public schools and there will be four new instructors at St. Mary Parochial school. A list of the county school faculties, virtually completed, is printed elsewhere in today's special edition of The Star.

All schools in the city and county have undergone cleaning and repairs during the summer and are in condition to receive the boys and girls next week.

Some of the city schools were completely redecorated and in all of them the renovating program has been unusually extensive this year, according to Pearl H. Sells, superintendent of buildings. The work will have been completed when the doors open next Wednesday morning.

STORIES AND ADS TELL SCHOOL NEWS

Attention of parents and school children is called to today's edition of The Star, which carries news, articles and advertisements of special interest, with the opening of city, parochial and county schools only a week away.

MARYSVILLE PRISON EMPLOYES OUSTED

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 31—Ralph Emmons of the state civil service commission said today that the commission had received an order for a 30-day suspension of two women employes of the Marysville reformatory, and another order for their removal at the end of the 30-day period.

The women, Mrs. Edna Anderson and Miss Minnie White, according to the suspension and removal order filed by Mrs. Margaret Reilley, head of the institution, "received visitors in a part of the institution where the receiving of visitors is forbidden."

Mrs. Anderson had worked at the reformatory for more than a year, while Miss White had been an employe several years.

HIRE DEWEES CASE ATTORNEY

Council Authorizes Director Ruth To Employ Private Counsel for Hearing.

C. M. PATTON RETAINED

Date on Which Commission Will Hear Case Expected To Be Set Soon.

City council last night authorized Safety-Service Director John V. Ruth to employ a private attorney to represent him in the civil service commission hearing of the appeal of the Orn DeWees, suspended police captain, for reinstatement.

Council voted unanimously to give the director this authority after Mayor F. C. Smith explained that City Solicitor Ralph E. Carhart is to represent the civil service commission and private counsel would be needed for the safety-service director in the presentation of witnesses to show why he suspended DeWees. He said the safety-service director's attorney would be employed at no expense to the city. After the meeting, he explained he intended to use part of his own salary as mayor to employ counsel for the safety-service director.

Mr. Ruth this morning announced he has retained Carter M. Patton, former city solicitor and a member of the city park board to represent him. Mr. DeWees recently employed the law firm of Wilhelm & Robinson to represent him.

Meanwhile, the civil service commission which will hear the appeal, met last night to set a date for the DeWees hearing, but adjourned to tonight. Harold E. Clark of 356 Monroe street, chairman of the commission, said the date probably will be set at tonight's meeting. Other members of the commission are James E. Messenger and Frank Robinson.

Mr. Clark said the appeal, which must be heard by the commission within 30 days from Aug. 21 when DeWees filed it, probably will be set for hearing in the week beginning Sept. 12. The hearing probably will be held in the common pleas court room, he said.

DeWees appealed to the civil service commission for reinstatement after the safety-service director suspended him on charges of inefficiency, incompetency, neglect of duty, other acts of misfeasance, malfeasance and nonfeasance and use of excessive force in the arrest of Waldon Warren Garey on a charge of non-support. Garey was wounded by DeWees' gunfire when he tried to evade arrest, and died 12 days later.

The commission will sit much in the manner of a court in conducting the hearing on DeWees' appeal. It will hear testimony of witnesses called by attorneys for the safety-service director and DeWees, hear arguments of attorneys and then give a decision.

Cholera Hits Shanghai Where Americans Live

Disease Noted in French Concession After U. S. Bars All Its Merchant Ships from Port, Thus Marooning 2,000 Nationals in Plague Infested War Zone.

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, Aug. 31—Cholera broke out tonight in Shanghai's French concession, where most of the city's Americans live.

The outbreak became known shortly before midnight, after a day in which United States authorities closed the port of Shanghai to all American ships except naval vessels, marooning for the time being some 2,000 Americans who have not been evacuated from the zone of Shanghai Sino-Japanese war.

Meanwhile an unidentified bomber attacked but did not damage the Italian operated steamer Lung Shan, filled with Chinese refugees, and Japanese forces, on sea, air and land, opened an offensive 12 miles north of Shanghai which, they said, resulted in the capture of strategic Woosung, its railway station and its forts.

Seek To Halt Spread

French concession authorities took every measure to halt the spread of the cholera, deadly intestinal disease which yearly takes its toll of underfed Asiatics.

Earlier in the day, with cholera dangers rising from overtaxed sanitation facilities and the steady drain on water supplies, the United States navy cancelled shore leaves and all Chinese hands were ordered off the flagship Augusta.

Reports of the black (bubonic) plague in native areas added to the horrors of war.

Hundreds of rotting bodies of Chinese civilians, killed in air raids and by artillery and machine-gun fire in Hongkew, brought millions of disease carrying rats and insects to the areas north of Soochow creek.

Order Areas Closed

Sanitary officers from the international settlement were seriously hampered in their work there. The Japanese military insisted the stricken sections be closed because of the presence of looters and the danger of Chinese troops returning there from the north and west.

Japanese were firing the bodies after saturating them with gasoline.

This in itself horrified the surviving Chinese, for they believe the burning of a body means there can be no redemption in the life beyond.

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, virtual civil and military commander of war-time China, in effect, demanded immediate foreign intervention to end the hostilities.

Chiang warned at Nanking that "Japanese aggression" to establish "a continental empire for herself" is a threat not only to the sovereignty of China but also to "international safety."

PENSION CASE APPEAL SOON

City Will Carry Decision of Appellate Judges to State Supreme Court.

ENTRY IS FILED TODAY

Action To Be Taken First in Thompson Case With Fireman's Suit To Follow.

Formal entry of the recent court of appeals decision in the suit of Former Police Chief James W. Thompson against the city was filed today, clearing the way for the city to carry the case to the state supreme court. The entry contains the terms of the decision which held that city council's abolition of the police pension system was void.

The decision was made in the court of appeals on Aug. 12 but W. P. Moloney, attorney for Thompson, and City Solicitor Ralph E. Carhart had until yesterday failed to agree on the nature of the entry which must be filed. With the filing of the entry, the city has 20 days in which to file notice of appeal to the state supreme court.

Until the entry was filed, the city was unable to take action towards appealing the case because legally the clerk of courts had no record of the appellate court's decision.

Mr. Carhart said today that in about 10 days he will file the notice and also a motion asking the supreme court to certify the record in the case. The notice is filed in the court of appeals and the motion to certify is filed in the supreme court.

The supreme court may either overrule the motion or sustain it. In overruling the motion, the court would end the case, but in sustaining it would then hold a hearing on the issues as contained in records of the proceedings in common pleas and the appellate courts and also would hear oral arguments of attorneys.

The entry as prepared by Mr. Moloney and approved by Mr. Carhart states that the appellate court reversed the common pleas court and found that the police pension system is still in effect, that the ordinance by which council attempted to repeal the pension fund is void.

It also states that sections of the state law authorizing cities to set up pension systems are not contrary to the Ohio constitution, and that payment of the pensions is not

LIFE INSURANCE CALLED BEST SECURITY METHOD

Chicagoan Claims Private System Excels Present Laws and Townsend Benefit Plan.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 31—The 5,000 delegates to the national fraternal congress here heard today a statement that life insurance can do all that the social security act, the Townsend old age benefit plan, the "distribution of wealth" plan "or any other theories of future protection for age and dependency in this country propose to do."

Col. C. B. Robbins, manager and general counsel of the American Life Convention, Chicago, adding to that assertion, said that "life insurance has the inestimable value of providing security through the energy, self-reliance and individual effort of the people, themselves, rather than depending upon the property of some for the benefit of others."

He declared that total losses sustained by policy holders during the depression due to failures of life insurance companies had not exceeded one-tenth of one per cent of the total sum entrusted to them and that the funds had been managed at an expense of only 1.1 per cent of the income.

Col. Robbins said that government competition in lending money at low interest rates was a factor of paramount importance to insurance companies.

He told the congress that "most borrowers do not realize that federal housing administration loans, including all charges, such as insurance and service, will average about 6.4 per cent."

"Usually the borrowers believe they are getting loans at lower interest rate than on the existing loans," he said.

Other speakers before today's sessions included Gov. Martin L. Davey, Fred A. Johnson of Chicago, chairman of the committee on lodge activities; C. L. Riggs of Detroit, chairman of the funeral welfare committee; J. E. Little of Detroit, chairman of the committee on state orders and statistics; and Fred A. Service of Sharon, Pa., general counsel for the Protected Home Circle.

OHIO JUDGE DIES

JUDGE T. A. JONES

DEATH CLAIMS JUDGE JONES

Ohio Supreme Court Justice Succumbs to Long Illness in His 78th Year.

CAME TO TRIBUNAL IN 1914

Had Served 14 Years on Fourth District Appeals Bench Previously.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 31—Judge Thomas A. Jones of the Ohio supreme court died today. He was 78 years old and had been in failing health for several months.

A resident of Jackson, O., when he was first elected to the court in 1914, he had made his home in Columbus for many years.

Judge Jones came to Ohio's highest court after serving 14 years on the fourth district court of appeals.

He had continued actively on the supreme court through the last decision day before the tribunal recessed for the summer, and participated in its final decisions.

Sat for Democrat

The death of Judge Jones, a Republican, paved the way for a Democratic majority in the supreme court, Gov. Davey being expected to name a member of his own party to the vacancy.

Until the time of Judge Jones' death, four Republicans and three Democrats were members of the court. The other Republicans are Justices Edward S. Matthias, Arthur H. Day and Roy Williams, while the Democratic members are Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt, Charles S. Zimmerman and George S. Myers.

Wins in Holdout

Judge Jones won distinction for his dissenting opinion, which eventually was supported by the majority, holding that special assessment bonds were a general obligation of a county.

Bonds for a sewer district in Allen county were defaulted early in the depression, and the county disavowed liability for payment.

The majority of the court ruled that the bonds were not a county obligation but Judge Jones' vigorous dissent became the basis for granting a rehearing.

The court then reversed itself and held with Judge Jones. His ruling subsequently was affirmed by the U. S. supreme court.

Judge Jones also was one of the first high jurists to hold that

ATTACK AIMED AT CRUSADERS

Publisher Had Been Printing Fleming's American Examiner Under Contract.

FIND LIGHT BATTERIES

Believed Used To Set Off Explosive; Call Received from Marion.

By The Associated Press

BELLE CENTER, O., Aug. 31—A bomb explosion and fire today wrecked the publishing plant of J. R. Manahan, who prints under contract Fleming's American Examiner, Inc., a crusading weekly paper.

Sheriff Charles Bewley said he found in the wreckage of the building six flashlight batteries, wired together, and that they apparently had been used to set off a charge of high explosive. He said he was without other clues and would turn the case over to the state fire marshal for investigation.

Manahan, who himself publishes two weekly papers, the Belle Center Herald Voice and the Mt. Victory News, at first said he believed an accumulation of gas might have caused the explosion, but after viewing the wreckage said he was convinced it was the work of bombers. He estimated damage at about $15,000, with $4,000 covered by insurance.

Gets Call From Marion

Manahan declared he received a strange telephone call from Marion about 45 minutes after the explosion, but that when the caller found his line was busy, the call was cancelled. The Marion operator told him the call had been made from a pay station, he said.

Andy Bold, reporter for the Herald Voice, was in the two-story building at the time of the blast early today. He related that he finished some work about 2:15 a. m., he heard an automobile stop before the building.

There was a tinkling of glass, as if a window of the downstairs shop had been broken, and Bold said he then heard a male voice mutter, "Well, that will do the job."

Grope Through Smoke

Bold said fire started almost immediately, and that he groped his way downstairs through a smoke-filled stairway and had to force open a door to turn in an alarm.

Belle Center, is a community of approximately 1,800 located 12 miles southwest of Kenton in Logan county. It is located on the section of the Big Four railroad connecting Marion and Bellefontaine and is approximately five miles west of Ridgeway.

The building in which the plant was located was of two-story brick construction in front and the rear of the building housing most of the printing equipment was of one-story hollow tile construction. The building is owned by the J. C. Morrow estate.

Damages Other Buildings

The fire did some damage to the law office of IC Stewart and to the stock of the J. H. Harlup grocery. It was estimated $500 damage was caused to these buildings and their contents before Belle Center firemen subdued the flames.

Windows in buildings as far as 100 yards away from the printing plant were blown out by the explosion.

Manahan declined to say with whom he held his contract to print the Examiner, a paper which was founded by Grover Fleming. Fleming now is serving an indeterminate sentence up to five years in the London, O., prison farm on a charge of circulating obscene literature.

Identity of the Examiner's actual publishers was not ascertained.

Sheriff Bewley said he knew nothing about the Examiner.

"It is not circulated in Logan county, so I don't know who runs it," said the sheriff.

He explained the paper appar-

Runaway Steer Caught in 'Rodeo' on Church Street

A snow-white yearling steer, a police captain and about a dozen men, women and children staged an impromptu rodeo on West Church street between Orchard and Garden streets this morning.

The steer had leaped over a four-foot sideboard of a trailer in which it and another steer were being hauled. The yearling scampered over lawns and sidewalks, with residents of the neighborhood and the owner in hot pursuit.

Acting Police Day Captain Bert Yoakum was summoned and aided in the chase until the animal was loaded back on the trailer, about 10 minutes later.

Captain Yoakum said the principal factor in the capture was the steer which remained in the trailer. It kept up a continual bellowing and the fugitive steer seemed to be loath to run far from the trailer.

Finally the animal came up to the endgate of the trailer and in a few moments had been coaxed back into its place. Then it suffered the ignominy of being tied to the sideboard with clothesline rope to prevent another leap to freedom.

The name of the owner was not learned.

MAN DIES TRYING TO SAVE 100 DOGS

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 31—George Gilbert's efforts to rescue 100 hunting dogs from a fire-swept barn cost him his life today.

Gilbert, kennel master at the Corapolis Beagle club, died of burns inflicted while he helped C. E. Porter save more than 80 of the dogs before they were driven out of the barn by the flames. Porter was reported to be in a serious condition.

The fire spread through the barn on a farm near Imperial, Pa., while Gilbert was in the hayloft yesterday. Fifty dogs were lost.

SEPT. 11 TO END TAX COLLECTION PERIOD

No Extensions This Year, Treasurer Cole Declares; Penalty Will Be Attached.

County Treasurer Homer D. Cole today set Sept. 11, a week from Saturday, as the closing date for the current realty tax collection. He said there will be no change in date and no grace will be extended.

After the deadline a penalty will be assessed on all unpaid accounts. To date approximately $435,000 of the $470,000 with which the treasurer is charged for the current collection has been paid.

The collection, known as the last half of 1936 collection, was started this year on June 1, the legal starting date. It was the first time in several years the collection got under way on time.

AUTO KILLS WOMAN, CHILD

CLEVELAND, Aug. 31—Mrs. Ida Varga, 42, Cleveland, and her years-old granddaughter, La Vern, whom she carried in her arms were dead today, victims of an automobile collision last night in which one of the cars was forced over the curb and struck her on the sidewalk.

Marion Co. Officers Ready To Give Aid

Marion county authorities stood by today, prepared to take a hand in investigation of the Belle Center newspaper plant bombing if any clues regarding the mysterious telephone call received by the publisher 45 minutes after the explosion developed.

Police Chief William E. Marks said he had not been requested either by the owner of the paper or Logan county officials to make any inquiry regarding the telephone call.

Sheriff Fred F. Miller likewise said he had not been asked to help in the investigation.

Both department heads, however, said they will assist in any way possible to trace the telephone call and establish what, if any, connection it had with the explosion and fire. Since the call was placed in a Marion pay station, it appeared unlikely that any trace of the caller could be found, authorities said.

FORMER NEIGHBOR KILLS DETROIT CHILD

Leads Police to Body; Head Crushed With Crank Handle; Wife Says He's Erratic.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Aug 31—A few hours after police had been asked to search for 10-year-old Evelyn Mack, a former neighbor led police to her body at the outskirts of the city today. Her head had been crushed with a crank handle. Police Lieut. Walter Bachor said Joseph Jacobs, the former neighbor, confessed that he killed her.

Jacobs is the father of three children. His wife told police he had been erratic since the death, eight years ago, of a daughter who would have been the same age as Evelyn.

Yesterday afternoon, police said, Jacobs called at the home of Vernon R. Mack, a designer for the Packard Motor Car Co. After some conversation, he asked Evelyn to accompany him to a nearby grocery.

When they did not return, the family asked police to search for them. An all night search was futile, but this morning police found Jacobs tinkering with his automobile near the Ambassador bridge.

Lieut. Bachor said Jacobs admitted readily that he had killed the girl and led him to the body.

Police went to the bridge in response to a report by a bridge attendant that a man whose automobile had broken down was acting strangely. The man was Jacobs.

Lieut. Bachor said Jacobs replied "I killed her," when asked what he had done with Evelyn.

Police expressed skepticism, the officer said, and Jacobs offered to lead them to the body.

He directed them to the point several miles from the Mack home.

There the officers found the body hidden in a clump of weeds. Jacobs said he had not attacked the girl.

He was sobbing hysterically when he reached police headquarters.

"I don't know why I did it," he sobbed, "I liked her. She was always so laughing and happy. I was going to take her to the grocery when we got into my automobile. I can't tell why, but I couldn't stop. We kept going and going."

ently concentrated on "special editions" for various cities in Ohio and the middle west.

"I've printed the Examiner under contract since September, 1935," said Manahan, "but I just print what the correspondents send in, and then send the printed papers to addresses furnished me."

Persons who have read the paper said that Bold, who identified himself as a reporter for the Herald Voice, had frequent signed articles in the Examiner.

Fleming's American Examiner, Inc., was incorporated May 6, 1935, with G. W. Fleming, B. W. Murray and William F. Snyder named as incorporators. Their addresses were not given, but Snyder was designated as the "agent at Belle Center."

The corporation, with capital of $500, was authorized to issue 250 shares of no-par common stock.

Prior to the incorporation of Flemings' American Examiner, Fleming had published the Springfield, O. Examiner, enlarged that to the Ohio Examiner, and later changed the name of the publication to the American Examiner.

A companion suit on behalf of the firemen's pension fund, filed by Hilbert D. The Uline case will be carried up within a day or two after the Thompson case, he said.

Boy Cut by Glass As Pheasant Flies Into Windshield

A Columbus boy returning Sunday from a week-end trip to Lake Erie with his parents was the victim of a freak accident several miles north of Upper Sandusky.

The boy, William Shirk, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Shirk, was badly cut by flying glass when a hen pheasant, apparently startled by the approach of the car flew up suddenly directly into the windshield.

Night Policeman Charles Schwabel and Fireman C. J. Henige of Upper Sandusky gave him first aid treatment for severe cuts about the face and a deep gash on one side of his face. The boy was taken to the Upper Sandusky police station when the parents failed to find a doctor, and later was given further treatment at the City hospital here. He suffered considerably from loss of blood.

LOYALIST VICTORY CLAIMED IN SOUTH

Report Wresting of Mountain Strongholds from Rebel Forces.

By The Associated Press

MADRID, Aug 31—The capture of several strategic mountain positions in the Sierra Nevada range west of Almeria was announced by Spain's government today in communiques telling of a new offensive in southern Spain.

Government forces dislodged insurgents from their tight grip on part of the Sierra Nevada, which in some places rises to heights of 10,000 feet.

The insurgents have held the entire length of the range, running westward from the sea behind Almeria, since the fall of Malaga on Feb. 8.

It was disclosed meantime that the Valencia government, in combatting mounting food costs, had fixed maximum wholesale and retail prices on essential foods. In most cases the prices set represented drastic reductions in current costs.

The price of eggs, for example, which had been selling in many places for the equivalent of one dollar a dozen, was fixed at 13 cents a dozen. Coffee, similarly, was cut from 80 to 10 cents a pound.

Other retail prices fixed by decree and computed on the basis of the official exchange rate follow: olive oil, 16 cents a quart, beans, five cents a pound, rice, four cents a pound; sugar, eight cents a pound; beef, with 25 per cent bone, 20 cents a pound, milk, six cents a quart, and bread, three cents a pound.

However, these prices in many cases will mean nothing to Madrid residents, for the articles aren't to be had at any price.

U. S. GOLD SEEN AS SAFE IN WAR TIME

Supply Retained in Test Mock Attack.

By International News Service

FORT KNOX, Ky.—Louisville fell into the hands of an invading enemy, but the nation's $8,000,000,000 worth of gold bullions in the gold depository on the Army reservation here was "saved" and trucked safely to Nashville.

This time it was play, but Uncle Sam's forces are certain the gold supply can be saved if the grim tragedy of war should ever strike.

Kentucky and Indiana officers of the Organized Reserve took part in the maneuvers, and theoretically the invaders seized Louisville territory making a retreat the only alternative for the American army. The soldiers retreated toward Nashville, but not until they had "taken" the precious yellow metal from the new gold fortress and started for Nashville.

The "game," arranged by Maj. George S. Beinkel, regular army instructor, was carried out grimly enough, and it wasn't just play to the retreating men, because they had to double-quick "under fire" in a certain length of time or they would have been prisoners and the gold would have been lost.

SHANGHAI DEFENDER

Although once a bitter foe of Dictator Chiang Kai-Shek, Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi, (above), one of the more able military strategists of China, has been placed in command of the 300,000 soldiers defending Shanghai, indicating that the Chinese leaders have reached a united front. TO SUCCEED UNCLE

New director of the half-billion-dollar empire built up by the late Andrew W. Mellon is expected to be Richard K. Mellon, 38-year-old sportsman nephew of the late financier. The former secretary of the treasury's son, Paul, is expected to forego the position of directing his father's interests because of his preference for more scholarly pursuits. CHOLERA EPIDEMIC BREAKS IN SHANGHAI resounded through the international areas, evidently was the first phase of the developing offensive through the Kiangwan sector, Shanghai's "back door" to the north. Japanese officers said Shanghai's north station was bombed.

Before the devastating fire of planes and heavy artillery began, the Japanese army and foreign police combined forces to drive 12,000 bewildered Chinese from their homes in the Hongkew and Yangtzepoo districts on Shanghai's north side.

The frightened populace resisted, at first. They fled, however, when Japanese police convinced them they had a choice between flight and death.

Caused by Complaints

Japan's action in warning the native population of an impending attack was believed to have been inspired by sharp reaction abroad against sudden Japanese attacks in which thousands of noncombatant Chinese have been killed or maimed.

Japanese also claimed capture of the Shanghai-Woosung railroad station. But at least part of the Japanese massed aerial and artillery fire apparently was a frantic effort to close a gap in Japanese lines between Woosung and Liuhe, base of the wedge the invaders are attempting to drive southward toward mid-Shanghai.

Pollution a food shortage verging on famine among war-stranded native refugees, and over-burdened water and sanitation resources created a disease menace against which Shanghai's foreign residents may find themselves defenseless.

Foreign and municipal authorities joined forces with emergency relief workers to combat the danger of epidemics, particularly the dreaded cholera to which the hunger-weakened Chinese are particularly susceptible.

Fear For Missionaries

Advices from Peiping said American consular officials in North China were alarmed for the safety of 99 United States missionaries who have not been heard from since the Tsinan consulate was evacuated Friday.

They and 40 others are believed to be caught before parallel Japanese columns advancing southward from Peiping and Tientsin. When Japanese evacuation of the northern part of Tsingtao is completed, possibly today, there will be no way to escape from the war except by a long, hazardous land journey to the south.

(In Geneva, Chinese delegates to the League of Nations placed the whole blame for the war on Japan's "irrevocable policy of military conquest and expansion." The Chinese called it "a case of aggression pure and simple," but framed their letter as a statement, not as an appeal for league action.)

Other Chinese Ports May Be Closed

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug 31—Closing of the port of Shanghai to American shipping raised the possibility today of similar action toward any other Chinese port which becomes a theater of major hostilities.

Admiral Harry Yarnell, chief of the Asiatic fleet, and Consul Gen. Clarence Gauss ordered all vessels flying the American flag, except navy ships, to keep out of Shanghai.

First official reaction here to the bombing of the Dollar liner President Hoover came in an announcement by Secretary Hull yesterday that Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson would make a strong protest to the Chinese government. Hull said then it was his impression that American ships would stay out of the war area.

There was no indication at the state department that closing of any other port was under consideration at present.

Since the Shanghai order will keep out private relief as well as other commercial vessels it was generally expected here that the navy would take over the task of evacuating as many of the 2,000 Americans still in Shanghai as will leave.

BOARD WILL DRAFT RETAIL WAGE CODE

Nine Members To Be Given 90 Days To Submit Pay Recommendations.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 31—O. E. Chapman, Ohio director of industrial relations, said today that information pertaining to a minimum wage for Ohio retail stores would be completed by the end of the week and a nine-member board then would be named to draft a minimum wage code.

Chapman will name three members of the board to represent the public, employers will name three and employes will select three.

Not more than 90 days will be allowed the board to submit recommendations for a minimum wage code for the industry.

If, at the end of 90 days, the board fails to decide on a minimum wage, Chapman has the power to dismiss the members and appoint a new board.

Chapman said that work on the beauty shop minimum wage code would start today and was expected to be compiled before the end of the year.

The first such code to become effective involved 5,189 laundry workers. Miss Elaine Sheffler, chief of the minimum wage division, said today that $3,404 had been collected from 96 establishments, representing back wages for 259 employes.

Since the dry cleaning code became effective, $5,113 has been collected from 102 establishments, representing back wages for 266 employes.

The hotel and restaurant code affects 35,000 workers. During the few months it has been in effect, $5,193 has been collected in back wages from 157 establishments for 483 employes.

Miss Sheffler said that 31 cases had been taken to court and that the minimum wage division had won every case.

Police visited the restaurant and learned that two men, one identified as Dahlover and the woman had ordered food wrapped it in paper napkins and left after an argument in which Dahlover slapped the blond.

JOE LOUIS BLAMES INJURY TO HIS HAND

Dislikes Fact He Did Not Knock Out Farr but Cites Handicap.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Aug. 31—Joe Louis, back in Detroit today after his 15-round decision victory over Tommy Farr, said he "didn't feel good about being unable to knock him out," but explained he was handicapped by an injury to his right hand in the third round.

Wearing smoked glasses that partly concealed a slightly puffed eye and nursing the aching right hand, Louis said he came here mainly to get a couple of days rest.

"I hurt my right swinging on Farr in the third," he said. "He was coming in, bobbing at me, and I swung. That bobbing made me miss the jaw and I landed on the top of his head. It felt as though my hand had been cut off."

Louis said he used his left almost exclusively after the third round. "I tried to use my right to set him up for a good punch a couple of times, but the pain was too much and I got scared that I might be doing serious damage to the hand," he continued.

"I kept feeding him the left and I gave him so much of that that my left hand is all bruised. He's tough, that fellow is. He's the toughest fellow I've ever seen. He can't hurt with his punches, but he can take it like no man."

Louis said that outside the puff on his eye "Farr didn't hurt a muscle."

"I'm going to sleep," he said. "When I get up I'll have my hand X-rayed and then I'll sleep some more. Maybe tomorrow I'll go out to the ball game.

"I'm ready for Schmeling any time they want me to go—if the hand turns out all right."

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31—An interstate commerce commission examiner recommended today approval of acquisition by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. of control of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Co. and the Erie Railroad Co.

The examiner, Ralph R. Meister, declared the transaction would be in harmony with and in furtherance of the commission's plan for the consolidation of railway properties.

Under the plan, the Chesapeake & Ohio proposes to take over from the Virginia Transportation Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary, 29,160 shares of New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Co. (Nickel Plate) common stock, 151,405 shares of Erie first preferred stock, 90,195 shares of Erie second preferred, and 769,509 shares of Erie common stock.

It proposes also to take over from the Alleghany Corp., another wholly-owned subsidiary, 167,300 shares of Nickel Plate common and 215,000 shares of Erie common.

Taken together, these interests would amount to 57.02 per cent of Nickel Plate and 55.68 per cent of Erie securities, representing voting control.

INJUSTICE CITED IN PENSION CASES

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug 31—Many aged persons "who drank and gambled away their money," Ohio's old age pension chief said today, are receiving state aid while "more deserving cases are forced to wait."

What he termed the more deserving could not be given pensions immediately because they were not in such straitened circumstances.

OHIO SUPREME COURT JUDGE SUCCUMBS

the legislature was the sole cause for the necessity of attaching the new law an emergency clause making it effective immediately instead of after a 90-day referendum period.

When the issue was first raised about 15 years ago, he was in the minority in that view but the court held with him when the question arose again in the most recent term.

Born March 4, 1859, at Jefferson Furnace, near Oak Hill, Jackson county, Jones was educated in public schools at Jackson and Ohio university. He was admitted to the bar in 1883 and first elected to the bench in 1900.

He was appointed mayor of Jackson to succeed Charles C. James, when the latter was appointed Ohio penitentiary warden.

Judge Jones went back to the circuit court of appeals in 1908 and again in 1912. He was elected to the supreme court two years later and reelected in 1920, 1926 and 1932.

A Republican, Judge Jones was a brother of the late Ed Jones of Jackson, former Republican state chairman and once an unsuccessful candidate for the gubernatorial nomination of his party.

Survivors include the widow, the former Grace U. Hoyt of Athens, and four children, Thomas Hoyt Jones and Eben Hoyt Jones, Cleveland attorneys, Mrs. Katherine Jones Cockley and Mrs. Grace Hoyt Mosier also of Cleveland.

Forest Glen expresses its appreciation to all those who participated in the Photo-Fun contest and invites all those who wish to take Forest Glen pictures at any time.

FOREST GLEN, the unrivaled beauty spot of all North Central Ohio, stands today as a community institution render- ing service in a manner befitting the unquestioned leader in its field.

FOREST GLEN is a large, modern, memorial burial estate. It is completely developed and finished in every respect. Owners of burial sections there know fully the appearance of the estate 50 or 100 years from now. Perpetuation of original beauty and facilities is assured by adequate and carefully managed en- dowment.

FOREST GLEN serves its community and its sections contain rich interiors, Cathedral Home, and the bulk burial and group services. Forest Glen serves through its music, originating in the home and broadcast through the Chimes Tower and serves as well through the living beauty of its growing things, trees, and flowers and shrubs, and its lakes peopled by majestic swans, for in all of these there is the atmosphere of living memories rather than the hopeless gloom of death.

FOREST GLEN offers its sections at rea- sonable prices, as reasonable in fact that they are easily within the reach of all. Sections may be purchased under a dignified and simple payment plan. The large percentage of available sections which have already been purchased justifies the statement that selections made now will avoid possible regret and disappointment later.

COUNTY SCHOOLS OFFER NEW COURSES THIS YEAR

Commercial Classes Added in Some Buildings and Science Departments Are Enlarged for Juniors and Seniors.

... courses designed to offer ... an opportunity to follow ... of their own choice and to ... as a guidance in helping ... determine what they would ... to do, will be offered county ... pupils when they return to ... classrooms next week.

... throughout the county system ... are being made to enlarge ... extend courses in commercial ... for high school pupils. ... time music instructors are ... on the faculties of several ... and others will have resi... music teachers who will be ... to devote additional time to ... individual school, in pref... to working under the pro... of dividing one teacher's time between several schools.

Also being introduced for the first time this year is an advanced general science course, offered to high school juniors and seniors only. The course will be given in six schools, LaRue, Green Camp, Martel, Morral, Agosta and Pleasant, this year. The course is being offered because it is considered of sufficient value to provide the junior and senior classes with a higher level of science.

In the commercial departments, Pleasant township High school has installed a complete department and will have a teacher who will devote full time to the work. The course will offer shorthand, typing, bookkeeping, salesmanship, business organization, business law and retail selling. At LaRue the commercial department which was first organized three years ago is being strengthened.

Prospect likewise is among the county schools that are making definite plans to include commercial work in the high school curriculum. The advanced general science course, designed for the benefit of juniors and seniors who feel that they will profit more by the new study than delving into the more academic studies of physics and chemistry.

Plans for the opening of the county's schools are being completed by the various boards of education, many of them reporting to County Supt. D. T. Mills, when their plans are completed. School sessions at Morral, Martel, Caledonia, Kirkpatrick and the Marion township schools, will begin Sept. 6, with others open on that day and still others starting on Sept. 7.

Announcement that the first countywide teachers' meeting will be held shortly after the start of school was made this week by Supt. Mills. The meeting is set for Central Junior High school, Sept. 11, at 9 o'clock. Dr. Clifford Upton of Columbia university will speak and the association will hold its annual election of officers. Supt. Dewey F. Stone of Prospect, present president of the group, will preside.

What To Do-

If You Get a Severe Sunburn

1. Call a doctor.
2. While you're waiting for him to come, bathe the burned area with bicarbonate of soda and water—or a tannic acid solution (eight tablespoons of tannic acid powder to a quart of water.)
3. If a fever develops, apply an ice pack.

By The Associated Press Feature Service

It is essential to call a doctor, says Dr. Charles F. Boldman, director of New York City's bureau of health education, because sunburn can be dangerous. A severe burn seals the pores, cutting off the perspiration which ordinarily carries off waste matter. A case may prove fatal if even one-third of the skin is seared badly.

Since the burned sections are very susceptible to infection, special care must be taken to avoid contact with anything infectious.

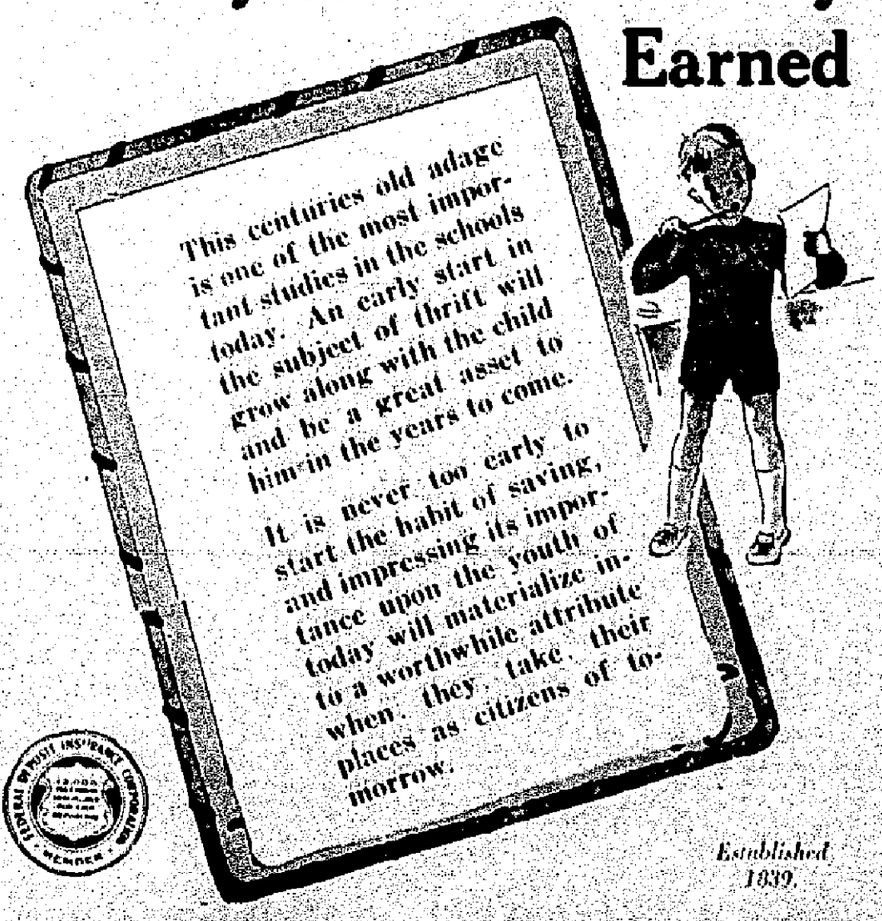
A Penny Saved Is A Penny Earned



This centuries old adage is one of the most important studies in the schools today. An early start in the subject of thrift will grow along with the child and be a great asset to him in the years to come.
It is never too early to start the habit of saving, and impressing its importance upon the youth of today will materialize into a worthwhile attribute when they take their places as citizens of tomorrow.

SYNOPSIS: Neill, a young federal agent, loves Janet, a Baltimore girl. She keeps a date with wealthy, flashy Prescott Fanning who kidnaps her aboard his yacht. Next day a mysterious phone call tells Neill Janet's in trouble on the yacht at Absalom's Harbor. Rushing there, he finds, in a locked cabin, Fanning shot dead and Janet in a faint, a gun beside her. Neill runs her to the disused lifers kept up the river and hides her in the boat suite. Returning to the village hotel, he resumes his role of visiting fisherman to watch developments. Horace Kettering, a Baltimore lawyer, and his son arrive to fish.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN.
Absalom's Agog.

KETTERING threw up his head and sniffed the fresh morning air. "This is great, gentlemen. A man works himself near to death in the city, and what does he get out of it? A couple of day's fishing a year!"

"Work's a damn bad habit," said Longcope.

Kettering turned to Neill. "And you?" he asked.

"Ford Wheatley."

"Pleased to meet you, Mr. Wheatley. You're a stranger in the village, I take it?"

"Yes. Down for the fishing like yourself."

"Fine! You must come out with my son and me as our guests.... Well, I'll be seeing you, gentlemen." He saluted them and climbed back in the car. The son had not opened his mouth.

There was something about his busy tongue and darting eyes that made Neill uneasy. This was not a man that he could trust.

"A talkative cuss!" he remarked.

"Yeah," said Virgil turning the cigar. "Looks like a case of the fox fathering the bull pup."

At that moment Neill saw a whitecoated figure appear on the Nadji's deck, run wildly forward and disappear through a door. He forgot the Ketterings. The man reappeared on deck with his two mates. They ran into the after house. Presently they came on deck again, flung themselves anyhow into the dinghy and started pulling crazily for the shore. Neill steeled himself.

Virgil, who had not noticed anything amiss, was talking amiably about the city slickers he had known. The men in the dinghy tied their little boat to the wharf in front of the store and came running across the road, white-faced and staring with horror. Virgil broke off suddenly.

"What the heck is the matter with these three fellers?"

"Police!" they gasped out. "We want the police. Where can we find the police?" All three were young men without experience, and they had completely lost their heads. There was a steward in his white coat and two sailors.

Their hysterical excitement made Virgil sore. "What's the matter with you?" he demanded. "We ain't got no police here. What do you want police for?"

All tried to explain at once. "Murder, mister!...There's been a murder aboard the yacht!.... The owner is murdered!...A bullet right through his head!...Must have been shot last night when we was ashore...We slept on board all night without knowing it...."

Virgil stood up suddenly. "Murder!" he gasped. "My God!"

Neill's nerves quivered at the sound of the ugly word. "Murder!" he echoed. "How terrible!"

"And the girl is gone!" cried the steward.

"What girl?" demanded Virgil.

All three explained together. "We had a girl on board....The boats' girl....And she's gone!.... How could she get off? The other boat's on the davits...."

"One at a time!" shouted Virgil waving his hands. "You, Jake, run and fetch the doctor. You men come in the store!"

Too Much For Virgil.

Neill followed them inside. As a stranger, he was disregarded. Virgil, being the leading citizen, felt that it was up to him to take command of the situation but it was a bit too much for him. He flung his derby on the counter and ran his hands through his hair as if he would tear it out. "Keep cool! Keep cool!" he shouted.

Every time he asked a question he got three answers. The crew it seemed, could not agree on the simplest statement of fact. Out of the confusion Neill could only pick a phrase here and there.

"Found him when I took his morning coffee down. . . . In the girl's cabin. . . . The door was busted in. . . . There was a hell of a fight while we were ashore. . . . You're crazy! It was the boss himself busted the door in! . . . Nothing else was disturbed. . . . We don't know who the girl was. . . . Real nice quiet girl. . . . We were aboard last night before 10:30. . . ."

It was no part of Neill's game to try to bring order out of the confusion. He listened, nerves taut.

Virgil looked at him in a distracted fashion, forgetting he was a stranger. "Reckon I better call up the county constable."

"It's the obvious thing to do."

"But he's a farmer. He don't know nothing."

"Call him anyway."

Virgil sent his clerk running to make the call.

"And Mr. Burton Billings, the J. P.," he went on pulling his hair, "he'll have to be in on this. He's an old grandmother, that's what he is. Oh, my God! He'll hail everything up, and the newspapers will call us hicks, and moss-backs and stick-in-the-muds!"

Neill said nothing. If things got balled up it would be fine.

"If I only knew where to lay my hands on the proper man to handle the case!" said Virgil. After taking an agitated turn back and forth, his face cleared. "I know what I'll do. I'll get Mark Bonniger. He's a man-of-the-world. And he's one of us. We don't want no foreigners horning in. Mark will tell us how to do everything right."

When the clerk returned, he was sent back to call up Mark Bonniger and also the justice of the peace. "Tell Mr. Button Billings to come straight to the yacht. He lives across the harbor."

Virgil ran out of the store, accompanied by the crew. At the door they met the doctor coming in and carried him with them. All five of them piled into the yacht's dinghy, loading her almost to the gunwhale. "No more room," they cried when Neill started to follow them, and rowed away. Neill was left on the wharf. He looked around for another skiff, but there were too many watching them now.

Pawing For 'Evidence'

Like a wireless flash, word of the murder had spread from one end of the village to the other. Men, women and children stopped everything and came running to the harbor. Nothing like this had ever happened in Absalom's. House work was suspended, the stores shut up and fish left without ice. The excitement in every face made Neill sore. What is it to them? he thought.

At first they contented themselves with lining up along the harbor road, staring out at the yacht and passing the same bits of information back and forth. Then one man jumped in his skiff. Immediately there was a stampede for the skiffs and a whole flotilla set out rowing swiftly to the yacht. Women and children were left ashore.

Neill was unable to obtain a place in a skiff until Jake the fisherman got the idea of starting a ferry at two bits a head. Thus some minutes passed before he got aboard the yacht.

The saloon below was packed to suffocation. The men had pulled off their hats out of respect to the dead, and were pushing and shoving to get a glimpse through the door of the after cabin. Neill worked his way through them. Everything that happened here was of vital importance to him. He was tall enough to look over a good many heads and he saw Virgil and the doctor, helped by the two sailors, examining the body, searching his pockets and so on. The young steward sat on the starboard locker holding his head between his hands.

Everything in the room—including the gun—was being well pawed over in the search for "evidence," and Neill smiled grimly to himself. Lucky he had only these hicks to deal with! He saw Virgil pick up the bullet on the floor beside the port seat locker, and hold it up for all to see.

Virgil was continually issuing orders without taking any steps to see if they were carried out.

"Quit your shoving, men! Ain't you got no sense of what is fitting? ...The girl must have swum ashore. She couldn't have got far. You, Tom Bolling, organize a posse among the men and search the woods across the harbor. Send a car up the road, somebody, to stop at every house and ask if she applied for shelter!"

A voice from the crowd said: "Somebody stole my skiff last night."

"Well then, maybe she tried to escape in that," said Virgil. "A woman could row far. All you men that have motor boats organize a search up both shores of the river and into the creeks. What like girl was she?"

The two sailors attempted to describe Janet. Very little could be gathered from their efforts, except the pink dress and the black velvet cape.

"She must had a guy helping her," said a voice.

"What guy?" asked Virgil.

"How the heck should I know. What was it busted in the door?"

"The dead guy."

"Maybe he was already inside and the door was locked."

Neill stiffened. This was getting too close to the truth.

Despite Virgil's efforts, Mr. Button Billings moves the body and holds an inquest, tomorrow.

Scientist Studies Tree Growth for Data On Weather

Prof. Edwin L. Moseley, professor emeritus of biology at Bowling Green State university and curator of the university's museum, has returned to Bowling Green after a visit with two former pupils, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Bain of 332 Sheridan road.

Convinced that weather conditions run in cycles of 49-year periods of wet weather and dry weather, Professor Moseley carried on his observations in Marion county and told the Bains he had found trees more than 400 years old, among the oldest he has found in carrying on his research throughout Ohio and adjoining states. To gather proof of his theory, Professor Moseley studies the stumps of very old trees which have been cut recently to determine the extent of growth of the annual rings in the different 49-year periods. So far, through out the state and nearby states he has found the growth of the rings has supported his theory. For every year of growth a tree has one annual ring and by counting these Professor Moseley gathers information on his theory.

Several years ago Professor Moseley discovered that the white snake weed was the cause of milk sickness in cows, a discovery made at a time when the illness was rampant. Professor Mossley is a past president of the American Academy for the Advancement of Science, is the author of several books on science and is a regular contributor of articles to magazines interested in scientific research. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bain have helped him from time to time in carrying on his research. Mr. Bain is instructor of biology at Harding High school.

another gentleman who prefers GAS HEAT!

Chances are that this young man won't be saying anything about gas heat for some time, but he will show his appreciation in many ways. He's going to keep lots cleaner with gas heat because there won't be any furnace dirt sifting through the house. He'll require less attention and keep healthier. He's going to have fewer colds and other winter ailments because gas heat maintains even temperatures. And his disposition will be better, too.

Every advantage that gas heat offers a child, it offers to each member of the household. Others in the family appreciate, also, the freedom from building fires, shoveling fuel and ashes. And when all expenses incidental to the use of old fashioned fuels are added up on one bill, you'll find that clean, healthful gas heat really costs no more. Phone The Gas Company and request that a representative make a free heating survey of your home. You'll be surprised for how little you can heat with gas — the modern fuel.

A Janitrol fits right into your outmoded furnace to make it an automatic gas-fired unit. The cost is most reasonable and may be divided in convenient payments, if preferred.

SCHOOL OUTLAY UP THIS YEAR

Provides Better Opportunities for 30,700,000 Youths in Public Institutions.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31—A general trend upward in school expenditures led educators to predict today enriched opportunities for 30,700,000 boys, girls and adults expected to enroll in public and private schools this September.

Officials at the office of education estimated that increases in school budgets reported from the 48 states will be reflected in slightly enlarged teaching staffs, additional school materials, and smaller per-pupil teacher loads.

School building construction by the public works administration, additional federal appropriations for occupational training under the new George-Deen act, and continued student-aid through the national youth administration also were credited with brightening the back-to-school picture.

Statisticians said there probably would be little change in total enrollment. They predicted a continued rapid decrease in elementary school population due to the falling birth rate, and an increase in high school student bodies.

Their rough estimates for the division of public and private school population in 1937-38 were: Kindergartens and elementary schools: 22,850,000; high schools, 6,490,000; colleges, 1,250,000.

E. M. Foster, statistical chief, said that total public school enrollment, which previously had been increasing annually, decreased last year because the drop in elementary schols was greater than high school increases.

The 1936 public elemenary total was 20,391,639, a decrease of 373,398 from 1934. High schools enrolled 5,975,242 in 1936, an increase of 306,086 over 1934. The net decrease was 67,312.

"A similar decrease is probable this year," Foster said.

$200 WAITING FOR PRECINCT WORKERS

A new problem is facing County Treasurer Homer D. Cole, who has approximately $200 which he wants to pay but which no one has come after. It has lain in his office since Aug. 12 and is the pay for 23 judges and clerks in various precincts in the city primary on Aug. 10.

The pay has been obtained by the remaining 157 judges and clerks, but Mr. Cole has received no word from the 23.

MAXIMUM DEPOSIT IN BANK INCREASED

National City Will Accept Up To $250,000 in County Funds.

County commissioners have authorized an increase of $50,000 in the maximum amount for which the National City Bank & Trust Co. will serve as a depository for county active funds, it was announced today. The change brings to $250,000 the maximum for this bank and to $500,000 the maximum in all three Marion banks.

Miss Edith Eibling, tax deputy in the office of the county auditor, said the additional limit will take care of the tax moneys which are now pouring into the county's treasury. The total paid in thus far is about $130,000 and is expected to soar well beyond $150,000 before Sept. 11 when the collection ends.

Usually the amount on hand is cut down by granting of advance draws to local governments in anticipation of the actual distribution of the money collected, but thus far there have been none, she said.

The Fahey Banking Co. has a maximum of $150,000 and the Marion County bank, $100,000. No interest is paid by any of the banks on active funds under new state and federal laws.

YODER WON'T OPPOSE DAVEY

Urges "Housecleaning" in State Government and Rebuilding Program.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 31—Lieut. Gov. Paul P. Yoder, who frequently has been mentioned as a potential opponent of Gov. Davey in next year's gubernatorial primary, declared yesterday he "is not a candidate for governor."

At the same time he urged that "Ohio shun all applicants" for the job of governor "and seek the man."

Declaring that the state government needs a "house cleaning" and a rebuilding program, Yoder said the state needs a man "who by nature invariably does things right, because it is the right thing to do and who exemplifies the policy that good government is good politics."

Likes Present Job

The lieutenant governor who led the "hatchet men" in their budget revolt in the senate in recent months and who is an opponent of the Davey administration, said:

"I am lieutenant governor and president of the senate, in which capacity I have found my niche in political life. I enjoy the work and work at it."

He said he was making the statement just in case "it will relieve anyone's mind."

Labor Vote at Stake

Meanwhile, reports from Washington indicated a lively interest there in the possibility of some primary opponent of Davey wooing the support of organized labor and of the CIO in particular with defeat of the governor for a third-term nomination as the goal.

Davey generally is believed to have lost many organized labor votes when he used the Ohio National Guard to reopen the steel mills during the recent strike. On the other hand, the governor gained considerable strength from the ranks of those opposed to the strikes, the CIO and the federal government's labor policy.

Some of the opponents of Davey are casting about for a candidate who might draw CIO support and at the same time attract votes now considered "safe" for the governor, according to the stories emanating from Washington.

Sawyer Suggested

One suggestion has been that Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, national committeeman from Ohio, might win the nomination in a two-man contest if he should get a united labor vote in addition to his large personal following.

Sawyer is at present on a trip to Europe. Meanwhile, a campaign for signatures to a petition asking him to run is being circulated through the state with 100,000 signatures as the goal.

While Democrats were pondering the situation in their party, the Ohio Republican Editorial Association over the past week-end issued a statement urging Republicans to make searching inquiry "for the cause of malignant and chronic party disability" which, the statement said, has kept them from winning more than three governorships in Ohio since 1903.

5,000 See Safety Films in Drive To Cut Deaths

Full Length Movie and Shorts Drive Home Need for Caution on Highways.

Thrilling and instructive lessons in highway safety were given to a group of approximately 5,000 residents of Marion and vicinity last night in an out-of-door moving picture show presented by the Ohio Safety Council and the Marion Chamber of Commerce on the grounds in rear of Central Junior High school.

Officials in charge of the show expressed satisfaction with the attendance, which they said ranked well with that in cities of comparable size. After stopping over in Marion all night, the show which was presented from an automobile trailer equipped with sound movie projection apparatus, was to go to Kenton for a similar show tonight. The trailer is touring the state for the council in an all-Ohio safety campaign.

A tribute to the dramatic nature of the pictures last night was the fact that although the audience had to stand during the entire two-hour show, very few people drifted away before the final flicker. After the pictures, the last few rounds of the Louis-Farr fight were broadcast through the sound equipment.

Judge Speaks from Film

The program opened with an introduction by Judge Roy H. Williams of the Ohio supreme court, president of the council, (from a sound film.) Next came a short in technicolor, partly cartoon and partly realistic, entitled, "We Drivers." It shows the principles of correct driving.

The next feature was a well-acted short, "Hit-and-Run Driver," showing the well-developed systems of most police departments for tracing down drivers who kill and run. While strictly educational, the picture had an excellent plot concerning a young college student who drinks a little too much and while speeding at night runs into two pedestrians on a highway. Frightened, he drives on, but police by clever detective work weave a web of circumstantial evidence around him.

The boy maintains his innocence until he is taken to the hospital to see his victim die on the operating table. He is sentenced to 20 years in prison.

The next feature was a series of slides describing the work of the state safety council and entitled "Safety for Sale." The commentator pointed out that safety is a commodity which the council believes it can package attractively and sell to the driving public. The slides outlined the seven-point program of the council: installation of divided highways and elevated curves; proper lighting of night accident zones; construction of over and underpasses; increased use of high visibility signs and signals; more effective patrol of highways, and traffic law enforcement; elimination of mechanically unsafe automobiles; broad extension of a planned safety educational program. The success of the program depends upon cooperation of the public entirely.

Shows Model Roads

The film showed examples of the 48 sections of highway in the state which the council is transforming into stretches of model road. The film features the work of the council's seeing committee on night driving. More than 60 per cent of highway fatalities occur at night despite the fact that only a fourth of the traffic is on the road then.

The main feature last night was "And Sudden Death," a full-length Paramount picture released for general theater showings and with Randolph Scott, Frances Drake and Tom Brown in the leads.

Scott is the head of the police traffic department in a medium sized city. Miss Drake is a wealthy girl who thinks traffic laws are made for the other driver and Tom Brown is her brother who doesn't think anything about them.

Scott and the girl meet first when she is brought into his office for speeding. He gives her a lecture then has her sentenced to attend his traffic school. Gradually romance blooms and it happens they are invited to a society party by a mutual friend. They arrive late at the party to find the brother pretty well under the weather and try to prevail upon him to let his sister drive to another home where the guests had decided to go.

He sneaks behind the wheel with his sister beside him, disobeys the warning of a patrolman who tests his brakes, and speeds 75 miles an hour. He crashes into a school bus, killing the son of a policeman, a pet of Scott.

Sister Takes Blame

Miss Drake slips behind the wheel after the accident and takes full blame. She is sentenced to prison for second degree murder on Scott's testimony against her. Meanwhile, the brother begins to repent and almost tells Scott that he was driving, but he becomes frightened at the last minute and drives away. He races down the highway with Scott speeding behind him, then loses control of his car and crashes. He confesses on his death bed and his sister goes free, free to marry Mr. Scott.

The council's trailer was in charge of Elmer Stine and Irving Fields, both of Cleveland. It was equipped with its own screen, approximately 20 feet square which was erected several hundred feet from the trailer.

In the afternoon the trailer drove through the city and announcements were made calling attention to the evening show.

Arrangements locally were in charge of W. D. Brown, secretary of the Marion Chamber of Commerce.

HARRISES WERE DOMESTIC

Announcement of the death of Gov. John M. Pattison came as a surprise to Lieut. Gov. Andrew L. Harris as he was at work on his farm in Preble county. Although a lawyer, Harris owned and operated a farm near Eaton. He did not come to Columbus that day but took the oath of office in the evening at the home of a neighbor who was a notary.

Both the new governor and Mrs. Harris were distinctly domestic. Both preferred living in Eaton to life in the capital. Mrs. Harris said to a reporter who went to the Harris home to tell her she was the first lady of the state, and who found her in her kitchen "scalding out the sink," that she did not see why any woman would want to be the wife of the governor; she would prefer to live quietly in Eaton.

Marion To Play 1 of 3 Final Home Games Wednesday

Women's Wrestling Makes Lively Debut in Marion

Two young women, one 28 and the other 28, gave Marion wrestling fans what many termed the best show of the year at the weekly mat card in the Uncapher avenue arena last night.

A near-capacity crowd howled approval as the girls, Mildred Burke of Kansas City, and Wilma Gordon of Nashville, Tenn., scampered about the ring, pulling hair, gouging eyes and in between times giving Referee Charlie Burgette one of the toughest half-hours of his life.

In the second feature bout, Buck Weaver of Terre Haute, Ind., successfully defended his Ohio middleweight crown against Silent Rattan of Kansas City. Rattan took a one-fall decision over the titleholder but could not wrest the belt from him, due to a "two falls to win" rule.

Referee Burgette took about as much bumping around in the debut of women's wrestling here as the two girls did. His shirt was torn from him and he was flat on the mat several times, with both girls rolling over him in a wild frenzy.

Miss Burke, 28, holder of women's lightweight title, finally won a two-fall victory after dropping the first fall to the contender in 10 minutes and 20 seconds. The champ came back to take the next two falls, one in four minutes and the final one in two minutes.

Miss Burke's one disadvantage was her possession of longer hair than her opponent's, and time after time found herself flung about the ring with Wilma's clenched hands fastened in her hair.

The contender took an early offensive, but sought the protection of the ropes when the champion clamped on a leg scissors. Wilma went to the ropes eight times in the first fall to escape Mildred's punishing holds, but invariably came back, wearing a taunting grin. She finally snapped on a headlock which Burgette could not break, and all three ended up in a tangle. Both girls then began seeking hair-holds until Wilma seized her opponent in an airplane spin, clamped on a body press and took the fall.

Wilma began her eye-gouging at the start of the second encounter. Burgette tried to part them at the ropes and all three fell to the mat, with the referee on the bottom.

Burgette's shirt was ripped from top to bottom. Throwing it from him, he went back to work. Wilma caught the champion in another airplane spin, but lost the fall when Mildred reversed it and clamped on a body press to pin her.

The girls gave their best show just before the third fall. Mildred kicked the contender from the ring, but Wilma pulled her out with her and they carried the fight right into the ringside seats. Three fast body slams gave the champion the deciding fall in an even two minutes.

Hair-pulling was out of the question in the Weaver-Rattan match, for Silent is perfectly bald and Buck himself wears a close-cropped shock. Their match started slowly and drew jeers from the crowd. As the match continued, however, the fans became interested in the unusually clean tactics of both men and turned to applause.

Rattan carried the early part of the fight to Weaver, but not for long. They traded punishing holds for 46 minutes before Rattan won the fall which gave him a decision victory. Buck's drop kicks were not as effective as usual, due to the silent one's defense. On several occasions he caused Buck to pull up to a sliding stop as he crouched before him, hands clenched into a threatening weapon between his knees. He won the fall with a flying head-scissors following a fast series of body butts.

The remainder of the bout seemed about even, with both men dealing out punishing leg, toe and body holds. The action speeded up, Rattan working on Buck with body butts and the latter resorting to dropkicks and pants to Silent's chin.

The advantage changed rapidly, swinging from one to another. Both grapplers began aerial tactics and were locked in one of Weaver's grueling toe-holds as the 90-minute time limit expired. A short time before, they had been locked in a double stepover toehold, in which the fans were barely able to tell the titleholder from the challenger.

Ken Hollis of Albequerque, N. Mex., and Fritz Kruger of Germany battled to a draw in a fast-paced 20-minute prelim. Hollis slid under the ropes half a dozen times and roughed it up quite a bit in his unavailing efforts to pin the wily Nazi.

Marion Hinklin served as announcer for the card. Time was taken out after the preliminary to let the fans hear the Louis-Farr fight broadcast. The crowd was heavily pro-Farr and greeted the decision for Louis with an outburst of booing.

TIFFIN TO COME TO LINCOLN DIAMOND; PLAY ENDS MONDAY

Ceyganites To Finish Schedule Here in Sept. 6 Double-Header With Fremont.

Marion's second-place Ohio State league baseball team, with three single games and two double-headers remaining on the regular schedule, invaded the Fostoria Red Birds park today. Right-hander Gene Morris was expected to serve on the mound for Marion.

The Tiffin Mud Hens, in third place eight games behind Marion, will come here Wednesday for a single game, starting at 5 p. m. at Lincoln park. It will be the next to last home game this season. Manager Chapple Ceygan said Johnny Brich, a right-hander with a record of 12 wins and five losses, will pitch for Marion.

Neither of these games can have much effect on the league standings, since Fostoria, today's opponent for Marion, is in last place, and Tiffin is eight games behind the locals.

Marion's schedule for the remainder of the season, which ends next Monday, Labor day, will take Marion to Tiffin Thursday; to Fremont for a double-header next Sunday and will bring Fremont here for a double-header on Labor day. Marion will be idle Friday and Saturday.

The Wednesday and Thursday games with Tiffin are postponed contests and will be played on customarily off-days for the league.

With the 1937 season nearing its close, Manager Ceygan is turning his eyes toward the playoff, in which Marion probably will play Findlay for the right to compete in the league championship round.

Under league rules, which bring the first and third and the second and fourth teams together in the first round of the playoff, Mansfield will meet Tiffin and Marion will play Findlay, unless the standings change radically.

The teams winning two out of three of these games will then clash in a three-out of five games title series.

The first round of the playoff will begin Thursday, Sept. 9. By all present indications, Findlay will come here on that day for the first game, Marion will invade the Browns park in the next game, and the third game, if necessary, will go to the home of the team winning a coin toss.

In other games scheduled for today, Findlay met Tiffin at Tiffin and Mansfield traveled to Fremont to engage the fifth-place Reds.

Farr Stays with Brown Bomber for 15 Rounds But Loses Decision On Points

Farr Wins Prestige and $60,000 Though Lewis Gets Decision.

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—Joe Louis still has his heavyweight championship, and he also has a new and round-eyed respect for Tommy Farr.

So have 37,000 fans who sat in the lights and shadows of Yankee Stadium last night and watched the old carnival fighter, half-blinded at the finish, jab and jimmy it out with the alleged Negro thunderbolt for 15 rounds.

Although they are without doubt hollering "robbery" around Fleet street today, there wasn't much doubt that the Brown Bomber deserved the decision.

He did, as badly scared as he looked in spots. In fact, he looked as dumb as a dime detective most of the evening and he took a lot of fancy punches, first and last. He never learned how to fight Farr. Yet he was the better man, and Tonypandy Tommy will be the last to deny it. Tommy didn't deny it last night even as he sat and tried to look out between battered eyes and listened to the "raspberries" that echoed and re-echoed across Yankee Stadium after Louis had been declared the winner.

Took Defeat Gamely

Farr is a big man in the boxing game today, even though a loser. He can stay around—as he plans to do—and make himself a lot of money. He put up a great fight against a foeman who was expected to knock him spraddle-legged, and when his best wasn't good enough he accepted defeat like a soldier.

At that, it must have been a thrill for the hardboiled battler from the desolate mining district of Wales. No fighter who ever came to these shores received a sorrier reception. He was tabbed strictly a second-rater, a fighter who didn't belong in the same ring with the ebon assassin, Louis. He must have felt good last night when, after he had given his stout-hearted best for 15 rounds, he groped his way toward the dressing room through

RED BIRDS DEFEAT INDIANS WITH RALLY; HOLD LEAD AGAIN

Columbus Uses Three Pitchers To Check Tribe, 6 to 4, in Association.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 31—The Columbus Red Birds had the top rung of the American association ladder to themselves today, thanks to their latest ninth-inning rally and the Louisville Colonels.

The Red Birds came from behind to down Indianapolis 6 to 4 last night, scoring twice in the final frame to break a 4-all deadlock. The Birds had to trot out three ace pitchers to hold the Tribe in check, Bill McGee, Max Macon an Nelson Potter all sharing the mound chore.

Louisville aided the Red Birds by defeating Toledo 8 to 4 on an 11 hit attack as Eisenstadt was holding the Hens to eight safeties. Louisville scored five runs in the first two innings.

The defeat sent the Hens into a tie for second place with Minneapolis, the Miller's scheduled game with Kansas City was rained out.

In a third night tilt, Milwaukee pounded Bill Cox for 19 hits and a 12 to 3 victory over St. Paul. The Saints collected seven doubles, four of them by Vernon Washington, to tie the American association record held by several players.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—Boys, paste this one in your Kelly's: Fight experting is gone forever. Tommy Farr, the surprising gent from Wales, saw to that. That big crash you heard along about 11:15 p. m. was the W. K. Limb going down with all experts aboard ...The Scribes are a shame-faced lot today...Some of the out-of-towners are afraid to go home. Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, rubbed it in hard. "All them experts," he snorted contemptuously, "should of stood in bed"...Anyway, Farr gave 'em a licking even if he couldn't quite get past Joe Louis...So we hold the telegrams of ridicule in one hand and reach for the headache powders with the other.

Louis looked bad. For a while the fans told themselves he merely was holding back for an opening...But as the fight went on, Farr disproved this. Joe couldn't find an opening against the teasing, bobbing, weaving style of the Britisher...Louis admitted after the fight he was able to land only one good punch and it took him 15 rounds to do this. It was the first of Joe's major bouts in which somebody didn't get knocked down...Max Schmeling again saw "somedings."

Tommy Farr wore the Welsh dragon on the back of his bath robe...If Farr had had any punch at all he would have had Louis on the deck in the eighth...This corner scored seven rounds for Farr and eight for Louis...Referee Arthur Donovan gave Louis 12 of the 15—He didn't credit Farr with a heat until the ninth. Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, sat in the press box and rooted for Farr.

Several times between rounds it looked like a puzzled Joe Louis was about to cry...Reports in Farr's dressing room said Tommy had bet $7,500 on himself—$2,500 at 2 to 1 that he would stay 10 rounds and $5,000 at 3 to 1 and 7 to 2 that he would win...At that rate, he broke even...At 6 p. m. there were 350 cops on the job at the stadium to maintain order among 300 fans outside the bleacher windows...Farr used the Yankee dressing room at the stadium, Louise the one occupied by the visitors.

GIANTS DOWN REDS, 4 TO 3, TO ADVANCE TOWARDS LOOP TITLE

Hubbell Collars Cincinnati by Relief Hurling; Tribe Wins, 7-6.

By The Associated Press

Old John McGraw, who's probably managing a pennant winner in whatever Valhalla baseball men go to, looked down on his New York Giants today and found the view well nigh perfect.

They were leading the National league—by a margin thin as a dime, but leading nevertheless—and a trio of McGraw men showed the way.

First, there was Bill Terry. Then there was Master Melvin Ott, the veteran youngster of the National league. And last, but far from least, there was King Carl Hubbell, the master of the screwball.

These three, and the fight that was McGraw's heritage to the Giants, made it appear today that the Giants are on the way to their second straight pennant, their third under Terry. At the moment, here were the statistics on the two clubs still in the red-hot pennant parade:

	W.	L.	Pct.	To play
Giants	71	46	.607	37
Cubs	72	47	.605	35

Right now, such other powers as the Cubs, Cardinals and Pirates appear to be quietly falling apart. So, the Giants, pulling together timely hitting and good pitching, are making the most of it.

Yesterday, with the Cubs idle, the Giants had a chance to go into the lead. They turned the trick with a 4-3 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

Ott, pulled in from the outfield and now playing as good a third base as any in the league, belted his 26th homer with a mate aboard.

Things were fine until Rookie Cliff Melton and relief flinger Dick Coffman couldn't stand prosperity in the seventh. Then Terry came up out of the dugout with a rush and waved wildly for Hubbell. Old squarepants sauntered in—in the memory of the oldest resident he's never been known to hurry—and had the Reds begging for mercy. Six men went down in order, before he gave up a dinky little scratch single and then retired the last batter.

The Giants' game was the only one in the National league. In the American league, the Detroit Tigers tripped the Yankees 5-4, with Hank Greenberg belting No. 30 and roundhouse Rudy York poking No. 28, and the Cleveland Indians pushed over a ninth inning run for a 7-6 win over the Senators.

First "Little World Series" Game Booked for Tonight

SHOVEL AND ST. MARY TO PLAY AT 6:15 AT LINCOLN PARK

Wesley 10, Lee Street 0.

Fairfield forfeited to Marion Steam Shovel.

Marion's "Little World Series" to decide the holder of the city's softball championship will get under way tonight, with the first game booked for 6:15 at Lincoln park.

Marion Steam Shovel, Industrial league winner, and St. Mary, champions of the No. 2 loop, will clash in tonight's game. The winner will meet Wesley, last year's city champions and winner of this season's No. 1 league race, in the second game Thursday night, also at Lincoln park.

Two postponed games were written off the books last night, as Wesley No. 1 took over Lee Street, 10 to 0, in a one-sided game at President's Field, and Fairfield forfeited to the Shovel squad.

Wesley's winning batteries were W. Walters and L. Harbolt. Working for Lee Street were Kidd and Young.

The game was lopsided from the start. Wesley scoring seven runs in the first three innings and three more in the sixth and final inning.

W. Walters struck out four Lee Street batters and passed only one man to first, while Kidd walked four and struck out none.

The Marion Steam Shovel-Fairfield game was declared a forfeit to the Shovel due to absence of several Fairfield players. The Shovel team was on the field in full strength.

The score by innings of the Wesley-Lee Street game follows:

Wesley	331 003—10 10
Lee Street	000 000— 0 4

Walters and L. Harbolt; Kidd and Young.

Public Invited To Watch Rifle Wizard Perform

ADOLPH TOPPERWEIN

Marion Gun club officials today were making final plans for the marksmanship exhibition to be given here Thursday by Adolph Topperwein of San Antonio, Tex., the "wizard of the rifle."

Topperwein will give the exhibition at the gun club's grounds on the Edison pike at 3 p. m. Thursday, following a practice shoot which will start at 1 o'clock.

E. H. Huggins, secretary of the gun club, has extended an invitation to the public to attend both the practice shoot and Topperwein's exhibition. There will be no admission charge.

Topperwein is regarded by gun enthusiasts as one of the country's foremost fancy shots and recently was featured in a Ripley "Believe-it-or-Not" sketch. The occasion for the sketch was Topperwein's feat of shooting eight hours a day for 10 consecutive days, missing only nine out of 72,500 targets.

He made four runs of over 10,000 targets each, including one in which he hit 14,450 consecutive targets. The targets were two and one-quarter inch blocks tossed into the air.

LOUIS GETS DECISION, FARR WINS PRESTIGE

thousands of Americans demanding the blood of referee, judges and anybody else who thought Louis had won.

But it didn't fool Tommy. He knew he had tried and failed, and he wasn't sore at anybody. The fight-writers expecid him to rail at the decision, and to castigate them for the things they had written about him. Tommy didn't do either. He looked out between eyes that were swollen almost shut and said simply: "I gave them a good go, didn't I" Tommy, then and there, made himself a lot of friends.

Farr Given Two Rounds

Referee Arthur Donovan credited the Welshman with only two rounds, just to show you how differently they can see things. This observer thought Farr won five rounds, that Louis took eight, and that there wasn't anything in the other two. The spectators from ten rows on back thought Farr won the championship by a country mile.

This much is certain: the old carnival scrapper put up a whale of a fight; he carried the carnage to Louis most of the way, and he undoubtedly would have won by a knockout if he had possessed a right-hand wallop to compare with Schmeling's.

There wasn't a knockdown. In the fifth round, after the crowd had done some booing, Louis whipped over a quick right to the jaw and followed with a left that staggered Farr, but the bell saved the Welshman from serious trouble. Those were perhaps the most damaging blows of the fight. Farr hurt Louis with several rights, but the Negro never looked like he was going down.

Louis naturally was disappointed with his showing. He had to admit that Farr was tough to hit. Farr, to give an idea, was able to lead with a swishing right whenever he wanted to, and to miss, and suffer no ill effects. He has been at the game a lot longer than Louis.

The attendance as well as gate receipts slightly exceeded expectations, which were not very high to begin with. Promoter Mike Jacobs announced the spectators totaled 36,903, of which 33,469 represented cash customers. The receipts from ticket sales amounted to $265,753, which, with $60,000 from the radio and motion picture rights, ran the gross income to $325,753.

Farr, who got a $60,000 "cut" of the profits, emerged from his American debut considerably damaged but with considerably greater prestige than had been expected.

Miniature fuses and holders that can be mounted directly on the terminal post of any electric motor have been invented.

Fire Burns On Trealaw Mountain for Tommy Farr

By The Associated Press

TON-Y-PANDY, Wales, Aug. 31—A high lonely flame on Trealaw mountain today illuminated the strangest scene ever inspired by a professional boxer.

It had been arranged that the bonfire should be touched off only if Tommy Farr, Ton-y-pandy's own, should win his fight with Joe Louis in New York. Tommy lost but the bonfire flared just the same.

The manner of his losing was so magnificent and the pride of his countrymen so deep that 5,000 miners and their weeping wives climbed the steep slopes of Trealaw just before dawn and touched off the fire of "victory."

In the flickering flamelight over the desolate, coal-pitted valley of the Rhondda river, the Welshman sang as only Welshmen sing, "Land of Our Fathers."

The music echoed down in the dreary valley where half the men are on the dole and the other half earn the equivalent of $12.50 a week in the mines.

So fervent was the song, so intense were the coal-smudged faces that it was difficult to comprehend the significance of the gathering. It seemed like a solemn religious ceremony.

Miners all over the valley had waited for sight of the bonfire as a signal of victory. When the flames burst, little bands in other communities started up the slopes of their own hills and soon fires planned every pinnacle for miles.

Before the fight Ton-y-pandy was tense. Court street where Tommy lived when he was a pit boy was decked with flags and one huge banner said "Tommy Farr...our champion."

Those who had tickets went to Judge's hall for singing and dancing which lasted until the radio broadcast of the fight started early today. Others milled through the streets and finally closed in on a series of loudspeakers brought into town for the occasion.

An almost churchly hush settled upon Ton-y-pandy when the clipped tones of a British broadcaster at ringside in New York started his picture of the fight. His words and the voices of women at prayer were the only things to break the listening silence.

After the decision Dick Farr, Tommy's brother who had a private radio party at his home, said: "Tell Tommy we're proud of him. At least he proved British boxers have grit."

Dawn broke cold and gray. It was fully daylight when the crowd finally started down from Trealaw mountain. The women went ahead to fix breakfast. The men stolidly drank their morning tea and went back to the mines.

The tea was bitter and the pits were deep and black.

YOUTH'S GOAT HELPS TO PLOW HIS FARM

By International News Service

ST. JOE, Ark.—You can "gee, haw" all you want to, it won't worry Leon Pemberton, 4-H club boy of near here.

That's exactly what Leon is doing down on his own little farm. Only Leon is hollering "Gee" and "Haw" at his pet billy-goat.

The billy-goat furnishes all the power for plowing and cultivating Leon's one and a half acre 4-H project.

And when the weather is bad, the goat carries the boy to school.

LONG SHOTS ON LOVE

From a glimpse at the newest styles, women are going to have a lot of sport this winter laying wagers as to how long they can keep an evening gown from slipping off.

When a woman cries at a wedding she can never be quite sure whether she is weeping with joy, envy, sympathy or foreboding.

A modern wife may not be so soothing as the sweet old-fashioned kind, but she is a lot more stimulating, and whatever her husband may die of he never dies of boredom.

Some women never stop having operations until they run out of the money to pay the doctors, or stop getting married until they run out of the money to pay the lawyers.

Getting your daughter married off no longer means losing her forever. It far oftener means losing her only for a little while—and then having to take her back C. O. D.

A popular writer thinks that a woman should be lenient with a philandering husband. But a wise woman will fire him as quickly as she would a cook who had double-crossed her. More quickly in fact because in these days it is far easier to replace a husband than to replace a good cook.

From the Hollywood reports, it appears that everybody loves a glamorous screen star except the man who has legally signed up to love her for life.

There are a thousand tame, home-broken married men to one wild one; but the wild one gets all the front-page publicity.

Before looking around for a new husband, it is always well for a woman to find out how much alimony the judge will allow her on the old one she's trying to trade in.

It's a wise man who is so unobservant that he is unable to tell his wife the color of his new stenographer's eyes.

DRIVERS SUGGEST SAFETY METHODS

By United Press

HARTFORD, Conn.—The governor's commission on street and highway safety mailed questionnaires to thousands of Connecticut motorists for suggestions as to the best means of reducing traffic accidents and deaths.

The majority of those who answered favored stricter enforcement of all traffic laws and a campaign against "influence" in "tag-fixing"; raising the age limit for eligible drivers from 16 to 18 years; re-examination of drivers every five years; compulsory inspection of motor vehicles; a 45-miles-per-hour speed limit and establishment of speed regulation zones; compelling pedestrians to walk on the left side of a highway without sidewalks; statutory regulation of bicycles and penalizing of pedestrians for traffic infractions.

Frowned upon were the use of "governors" to limit the speed of automobiles and the registration of bicycles.

Most drivers felt that pledges to drive safely were not strictly observed.

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Romance Between Noel and Olina Not News to Olga.

THIS TIME there was no mistaking the sound. Queen Olga drew a sibilant breath as Lillian alluded to Philip Veritzen's former opposition to his son's marriage to Mary. And then she calmly and quietly performed the time-honored feat of taking Lillian's breath and mine away.

"Was that when my daughter was over here and became so interested in Mr. Noel Veritzen?" she asked.

I could not find words to answer her and turned helplessly to Lillian. Until that second I had had no inkling that Princess Olina's mother knew aught of Noel, save that he was the son of the famous theatrical producer and philanthropist whom Olina had met during her runaway sojourn in the United States.

Lillian Explains

I found myself wondering what other knowledge she concealed beneath the regal composure of her features.

"Even before that," Lillian replied truthfully. "Mary's name always has been anathema to him. Why—we do not know. We never were sure but we strongly suspected him of a dastardly plot to discredit Mary in his son's eyes. But to do him justice, I always have believed that he was not mentally himself at that time. But, when your daughter appeared on the scene—"

She stopped abruptly and, leaning forward, looked steadily at Queen Olga.

"How much do you know about that summer?" she asked.

An enigmatic smile played about the invalid's mouth.

Romantic Situation

"More than my daughter guesses; more than Mr. Veritzen dreams," she said. "Olina has told me very little, but I am accustomed to reading between the lines of anything told to me. I think I have a very good mental picture of the happenings of that summer. I am sure that Olina and Georges, before their reconciliation, were extremely—interested—in Noel and Mary. They wouldn't have been human if they had not reacted to so romantic a situation and setting. I should have felt the same way at my daughter's age. In fact—"

Doesn't Know All

Her voice trailed off into silence, and for the fraction of a second her eyes were dreamy with reminiscence while I wondered what memories were unfolding before her. Then she came back to us again, and spoke in clipped, decisive accents.

"But what I do not know—can only guess—is the reaction of your young people to the situation. I would also like to know how far the romances went—whether or not there were actual betrothals. My daughter has always been extremely reticent about the whole affair, but Georges and I are very friendly. Although he did not confide in me fully—I imagine because Olina objected—he dropped hints enough to make me suspect that there were formal betrothals. Poor Georges! I wonder if I can still use the present tense in speaking of him. There has been no word of him in the distorted news from his war-torn country, Mr. Veritzen tells me. No one knows where he be living or dead."

Another Question

She stopped and searched our faces with her keen eyes.

"But it was not to talk of Georges' possible fate that I asked you to come here," she said. 'Before I come to the crux of the matter, I want to ask you if, without betraying confidence, you can tell me about possible betrothals, and whether Noel and Mary were as interested as Georges and Olina were and also—"

She stopped again and a smile which held an elusive hint of mischief played around her lips.

"What part did parental coercion play in Noel's attentions to Olina?"

LEARNS TRUMPET PLAYING AT 67

By The Associated Press.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass.—Miss Abby Putnam, descendant of one of Provincetown's oldest families, believes one is never too old to learn.

At 67, she has mastered the trumpet.

A retired librarian, she received a congratulatory letter from Walter B. Pitkin, author of "Life Begins at 40."

"Your achievement is so striking that I frequently hold you up (in complete anonymity, so far) as one of my prize cases of the art of learning! You have my heartiest congratulations. Next year I shall expect to hear that you are a member of a full-fledged band," Pitkin wrote.

IT'S ODD
But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK—Dust from freshly broken rock is alive with dangerous poisons. They die after a certain amount of contact with the air.

This discovery, made at the Imperial College of Science and Technology in London, explains some of the mystery of the lung dust disease, silicosis. Dusts from silicosis-producing rocks are sometimes found to be "dead"—that is, not likely to cause lung trouble.

The reason, the English scientists say, is loss of alkali and soluble silica, which the particles carry when freshly broken lose. The smallness of the particle has something to do with the poison effect. Only very fine particles give off the dangerous chemicals.

PATTERN 4450

The Stars Say--

For Wednesday, Sept. 1

THE RULING planetary influences for this day make for lively and intriguing conditions, although this enterprise may be in relation to private interests, or to those forms of business or occupation involving social, artistic, domestic or romantic activities. An element of secrecy or subtlety is shown, probably in connection with mergers, combines or secret organizations. Tacit understandings thrive, but be careful with loans, speculation and shun extravagance and indulgence. As there are social temptations.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a lively year, particularly in the private life, where social, artistic, domestic or affectional matters are paramount. But in all there loom the elements of intrigue and subtlety. Secret understandings or collusion may be of benefit, but be careful with loans, do not be imposed on and beware of excesses, extravagance and indulgence.

A child born on this day may have strong leanings toward social, domestic and romantic activities to the neglect of more solid or practical affairs. Generally, it will lean toward the subtle, elusive and intriguing, with inclinations to be overgenerous, indulgent and extravagant. It should be popular and friendly and may accumulate a fortune.

STOCK LEADERS CLIMB CAGILY

Steels and Rails Lead Advance but Gains Are Later Pared.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—Although buying vigor was lacking, leading stocks today displayed further market improvement.

Steels and rails led the opening advance for fractions to a point or more. They fell back later and near the fourth hour top marks had been lowered considerably in many instances. Dealings were almost as sleepy as in the preceding session.

Nervousness over the far eastern war seemed to have abated as polite notes and apologies traced out threatened international complications connected with the shooting and bombing of foreigners by both sides.

At the same time speculative contingents, for the most part, were inclined to move cautiously while waiting for a clearer outlook on fall business.

Japanese loans improved in the bond department, but other bonds were without definite trend. Cotton futures dipped following announcement of the government's lending program for this commodity. Grains also backed away.

Above water most of the time were shares of U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, International Harvester, Baltimore & Ohio, Western Union and Electric Boat.

Johns-Manville pushed up following declaration of an extra dividend.

Standard Oil of California was in demand but other oils marked time as official figures disclosed crude output for the week ended Aug. 28, established a new record peak.

Interest was shown in the opinion of Chairman Sloan of General Motors, upon his return from Europe that price hoists on new 1938 automobile models are likely because of higher wages and other costs.

In line with the action of motor stocks, talk was heard in boardrooms that Chrysler is considering introduction of a much lower-priced car than is now being turned out by this company.

The improved tone of the carriers apparently was in response to the belief the wage controversy will be settled shortly and the matter of higher freight rates adjusted to the satisfaction of the roads.

Let Child Work To Build Initiative, Expert Urges

"Household tasks offer an ideal opportunity for children to assume responsibility."

This is one of a series of Associated Press articles on child guidance and development.

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK—Washing the dog and raking leaves aren't just odd jobs thought up to keep Tommy out of mischief. They're really responsible tasks which will develop his initiative, and turn him into a self-sufficient individual.

At least that's the way Dr. Ruth Andrus, head of New York State's Bureau of Child Development and Parent Education, looks at it.

Don't Ask Too Much.

"Household tasks offer an ideal opportunity for children to assume responsibility," she says. But, she warns nervous parents, once Tommy has been given instructions, don't hector him. He'll be disturbed, and won't be able to do the job well.

"Let him break a dish or two," says Dr. Andrus, who thinks the average mother is too emotional anyway. "Naturally he can't do the task as well as his mother can.

"Don't ask too much of him. Give him affection and security, so he won't mind asking for help when he needs it."

Tasks Must Be Varied.

Dr. Andrus tells of a five-year-old who insisted on carrying a guest's suitcase out to her car. His mother let him try it, but half way down the drive, he dumped his to help me."

There shouldn't be any distinction in sex when alloting duties. Tommy can be as good a dishwasher as his sister Jane. And he won't turn sissy overnight because he helps his mother around the kitchen.

The psychologist warns parents against keeping their children too long at one task. "The 11-year-old daughter of a friend of mine once came to me in tears," she says, "and told me she was going to run away from home because her mother made her dry the silver after every meal.

"There's a silver-drying stage in development, but it's the earliest stage—because silver is unbreakable—and children grow out of it."

Affects Adults Life.

The errand-running stage is soon outgrown, too. Children need to do the job entirely by themselves. Just bringing mother equipment doesn't help Tommy gain self-reliance.

Parents who won't allow their children to have any responsibility at all seriously endanger their adult life, Dr. Andrus believes.

An example she cites is the woman who as a child was continually told she was "too little to cook." She hates cooking now.

WHEAT PRICES DROP THEN BOUND BACK

Traders Shift Holdings From September to More Deferred Contracts.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 31 — Wheat prices snapped back to around yesterday's closing level after declining about a cent a bushel early today. Buying power was feeble and much of the business consisted of selling of September wheat holdings and buying the more deferred contracts by the same interests.

After notices of intention to deliver grain September contracts tomorrow were announced the market rose from the day's lows, which were around the season's bottom prices.

Wheat closed ⅝ lower to ⅝ higher compared with yesterday's finish. September 1.03⅝@1.03⅝. December 1.05¾@1.05⅝, and corn was ⅝ off to ⅝ up. September 97@97½. December 69⅝@69⅝. Oats were ⅛ down to ⅛ up.

DELAY SCHOOL ZONE CHANGE

No Action Taken as Objections to Transfer Are Raised at Hearing.

A proposal for transfer of an area in the south eastern part of Marion township from the Marion township rural school district to the Pleasant township school district was tabled temporarily by the county board of education after a public hearing on the proposal at Harding High school.

The board deferred action on the proposal, sought in a petition presented to the board several months ago by a number of persons it would affect, when the hearing brought a number of protests. Signers of the petition did not appear at the hearing to voice arguments in favor of it.

Two members of the Marion township board of education were among those who objected. They are William Risch and Frank Hinamon, both of whom contended the transfer should not be made at this time of year. Teachers and bus drivers are employed for the one-room schools now serving the area affected, they pointed out. W. T. Owen was among the others speaking against the proposal, complaining of the seven-mile distance from his property to the Pleasant school.

The county board last night approved a list of school bus drivers' contracts for the various districts as follows:

Air Stewardess Averages Marriage Proposal a Day

BY CHARLES GRENHAM
International News Writer

LOS ANGELES — Norma Schlautman, blonde and blue-eyed, could get married 365 times a year.

A stewardess aboard the Union Pacific's Challenger, she averages a proposal a day from lonesome males who find the atmosphere of the famous train conducive to romance.

Twenty-two years old and attractive, Norma is one of 46 stewardesses who tend to the comfort of passengers on Union Pacific trains.

Tending to the physical comforts of her passengers is only half the job, says Norma. A registered nurse—as are all Union Pacific stewardesses — she tends to their ailments, takes care of their babies and listens to their assorted personal troubles. Yes, and even to their proposals of marriage.

Norma was born in Howells, Neb., population about 1,000. She went to high school in Howells and then decided to become a nurse. She entered nurses' training at St. Catherine's hospital in Omaha and finished the regular three-year course. After working as a registered nurse for a while, she decided that working as a stewardess might provide a little more excitement. She got the job last January and found excitement aplenty.

Her Duties Are Varied

"No one trip is like another," she said. "There's never any monotony connected with it. Faces are different, people are different and there's always something new coming up to challenge your ability. Some times they're pretty startling.

"One woman, for instance, offered to adopt me. She was a nice elderly person who lived in Chicago and was lonesome. She wanted me to come and live with her. I had to decline, politely but firmly. You'd never think a big girl like me would get an offer of adoption from a nice old lady. But that's the way it is."

Requests for assistance are about evenly divided between men and women, according to Norma. Men mostly ask for relief from hangovers or headaches, although the two are often synonymous. Women are always asking her to take care of their babies. She must prepare the baby's formula and very often feed it, a job Norma says she likes. She often gives a helping hand to old people and invalids, although they are in the minority.

Advice Often Sought

"Some times people just ask me to sit down and talk, both men and women. They tell me their troubles, where they're going and why. A great many of them are interested in my job and some of the women seem a bit envious.

"A lot of them ask for advice on personal problems. Those are discomforting. I try to get out of it if I possibly can. One man asked me whether he should divorce his wife and buy some new fishing tackle and a shotgun and go off on a long vacation or go back to her and buy a new car. Try and answer that one!"

BOWLERS WILL MEET AT ALLEYS TONIGHT

Two Leagues To Organize This Week; More May Be Formed Later.

Organization of two more leagues to compete in the 1937-1938 bowling season will be completed this week, Art Winterstellar, manager of the Marion Recreation Center at 128 South Prospect street, announced today. League bowling is set to begin Sept. 13.

With six leagues all set to go, the Industrial league will organize tonight and the Commercial league will do likewise at a meeting Wednesday night. Last year's team captains of the Industrial league will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the alleys. Tomorrow night's meeting will start at the same hour.

Winterstellar said that organization of the Industrial and Commercial leagues probably will be followed by the establishment of two additional leagues, making a total of 10 loops this year as against eight last season.

Leagues organized so far are the women's All-Star, men's All-Star, Mercantile, Recreation, City and Craftsmen's.

Work of resurfacing the alleys will begin Thursday, Winterstellar said, and probably will be completed about Sept. 8.

CHILD IS STRICKEN ILL WITH PARALYSIS

Robert Wadsworth, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Wadsworth of 891 South Prospect street is critically ill, victim of the first infantile paralysis attack reported to the city health office this year. First signs of paralysis came on Saturday and since then his condition has become worse rapidly.

The attending physician said today the boy's condition is critical. The family returned Aug. 23 from four weeks in Ontario, Canada. There is no way of telling whether the boy became exposed on the trip or after he returned to the physician said.

GALION RAILROAD CONDUCTOR RETIRES

C. W. Foltz Completes 45 Years of Service With Railroad Companies.

Special to The Star

GALION, Aug. 31—Having completed 45 years of railroad service, the last 35 spent with the Big Four Co., C. W. Foltz of Sherman street, retired today as passenger conductor. His work will be completed when he arrives in Cleveland Wednesday morning at 7:30 a. m. on train No. 42, Cincinnati to Cleveland.

For the last five years he has been conductor of trains No. 42 northbound, and No. 123 southbound, and on trains No. 5 and No. 18 for the last eight years, alternating the four trains during the week. Prior to that he had had runs between Cleveland and Indianapolis.

His service with the Big Four began in 1899 when he hired out as a fireman on the Cleveland division. After an illness of typhoid fever, he returned to work as a brakeman in 1900. Promotions after this came in 1905 when he became freight conductor, and in 1925 when he took the passenger conductor position. He has lived in Galion since 1900, but his work has kept him out of the city most of the time.

Mr. Foltz first started railroading with the N. Y. P. & O., now a part of the Erie, at Salamanca, N. Y., his native town. In 1892 he worked as brakeman between Salamanca and Meadville, Pa., and then became switchman in the Salamanca yards. Later he worked as brakeman on the Western New York & Pennsylvania, now part of the Pennsylvania system, between Oil City, Pa., and Olean, N. Y. For about three years he served as brakeman on the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh railroad working between Bradford, Pa., and Buffalo, and then was promoted to conductor. He then came to Ohio to start with the Big Four, and has continued in the service of this company for 38 years.

LEAGUE DISCUSSES WORKING PROBLEMS

Local work problems, both in private employment and on WPA projects, were discussed by members of the Workers Progressive league council at a meeting last night at the city hall. F. W. Gorbett and Mr. Fleiter of the state WPA labor relations department, were present for a short time and took for disposition the decisions reached by the council on several complaints. In the near future the council hopes to meet with city officials regarding WPA projects.

A public meeting of the league will be held Thursday at 7:30 p. m. in Junior Order hall.

OHIO HUNTERS PREPARE FOR SEASON'S OPENING

10 Per Cent Increase Forecast in State, but Marion County Situation Appears About Normal.

While a 10 per cent increase in the number of Ohio hunters is expected this fall and winter generally in the state, advance sales of licenses in Marion county indicated today a normal year in this vicinity. Roy Abel, leader of the Marion County Fish & Game Protective association said he has sold about 70 licenses thus far and that he does not expect a material increase in the number of nimrods here.

The first guns will bang on Sept. 25, with the opening of squirrel season, five days in advance of last year, The Associated Press reported today from Columbus. The season closes Oct. 15. The daily bag limit is four.

Expect Rush Soon

The office of the Marion county clerk of courts has issued only 12 permits since July 1 but a rush is expected to begin within the next few days. Copies of new hunting laws have not been received either by Mr. Abel or the clerk's office.

In the state the hunters are expected to number nearly half a million, according to the state conservation department. Ohioans purchased 450,257 licenses last season, an increase of 20 per cent over the previous season. More and better business conditions were credited for the increases.

Marion county usually has approximately 4,300 licenses issued by hardware stores, the township clerks, the county clerk and sportsmen's groups.

Slight Changes

Only minor changes have been made in hunting regulations and seasons by the conservation council, which was granted the authority by the legislature.

In addition to the squirrel season change, the council also decided that "running of dogs in the fields and woods is prohibited from 4 p. m., Nov. 1 to Nov. 15 inclusive during the hours from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m., except dogs may be run at recognized field trials."

The season for hunting waterfowl extends from Oct. 9 to Nov. 7, on rabbits from Nov. 15 to Jan. 1 and on pheasants from Nov. 15 to Nov. 25. The bag limit on rabbits is five per day and on pheasants two per day.

For the first time hunters will be required this year to wear a free tag on their backs showing the number of their hunting license. Sunday hunting, use of ferrets and the sale or purchase of game birds and squirrels are prohibited as in former years.

MIKE JACOBS PLANS ELIMINATION BOUTS

Sidetracks Plans for New Encounter Between Lewis and Max Schmeling.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—Sidetracking, at least for the time being, his plans for a return match for the title between Champion Joe Louis and Germany's Max Schmeling, Promoter Mike Jacobs this afternoon announced he would conduct an "elimination tournament" among heavyweight contenders to determine an opponent for Louis, next June.

Jacobs' sudden declaration came after he failed in several attempts to get in telephonic contact with Schmeling, who has been at odds with the promoter over terms for the bout considered generally to be the "natural" among heavyweight pairings. A return bout between Louis and Schmeling, who knocked out the Negro a year ago, is considered a "million-dollar proposition."

Jacobs said the match between two ex-champions, Jim Braddock and Max Baer, on Oct. 29 in Madison Square Garden, probably would be the first of a series to determine the next heavyweight challenger. The promoter added that Schmeling would be offered one or more matches, one possibly with Tommy Farr, the British champion who went 15 gallant rounds with Louis at the Yankee stadium last night.

SUFFERS ELECTRIC SHOCK FROM MOTOR

Transfer Co. Employe Injured While Unloading Paper at Star Plant.

Charles Miller, 60, of 382 North Main street, an employe of the Wright Transfer & Storage Co., suffered an electric shock when he was caught in a short circuit between an electric motor and a freight elevator at The Star office this afternoon.

The short was caused by Mr. Miller leaning against a metal wire conduit leading to the motor while he reached out with his right hand to pull a metal cable to lower the freight elevator from sidewalk level to the basement.

He succeeded in tripping the elevator, but was knocked into the elevator pit by the force of the shock. Stunned and helpless, Mr. Miller lay in the path of the descending elevator platform until Clyde Colle of 468 West Columbia street, who was working with him, leaped from the sidewalk level into the basement and threw a switch that stopped the elevator. He became aware of Miller's danger when he heard him groaning.

The men were unloading newsprint paper from a truck to storage space in the basement of The Star building when the mishap occurred about 2:30.

Mr. Miller regained strength quickly and was taken to a physician's office for treatment of hand burns and for shock.

Aug. 30 Frost Kills Corn, But It Was 54 Years Ago

Brow-mopping and guzzling cooling beverages may be in order today with the mercury in the 90's, but it wasn't 54 years ago today. Reece Oborn of 326 South Prospect street, recalled this morning. The kitchen stove was the most popular spot on that date, he recalls, for the night before there was a killing frost that destroyed the corn and all other vegetation, and left the farmers and their families in this vicinity helpless and almost hopeless when it came to the winter's food problem.

Yesterday's high was 91 and low was 68, as compared with the frost temperatures of more than a half century ago.

The weather cut all sorts of didos 54 years ago, Mr. Oborn remembers. It was a backward spring and when corn planting time came along in May, a series of rains "set in" which kept the farmers out of the fields. That is all except Mr. Oborn's father, William Oborn, and one or two others, who planted their corn between the first and tenth of May, regardless of the weatherman's bill of fare.

Mr. Oborn has good reason to remember the spring for he helped plant the corn on his father's farm and there was no modern equipment such as a planter. Instead a hand planter known as a "jabber" was used and many farmers, including Mr. Oborn's father planted by dropping the kernels by hand. It was so cold on some days Mr. Oborn had the happy idea of "dropping" the corn with mittens on. It got plenty cold May 26, and the following day there was a snow fall of more than two feet. The next morning the sun came out, melting the snow and making the ground so wet the farmers couldn't work it until after June.

The corn planted that year did well, despite the late start, and had the weather been kind would have yielded a good crop. The morning after the killing frost of Aug. 30, the weather, keeping to its temperamental form, turned so hot it was almost unbearable in the fields. "It was just as hot as it is today," Mr. Oborn says.

The farmers sold off their hogs and drove for miles to buy corn for feed and for seed corn the following spring. Because of the early planting Mr. Oborn's father and others who insisted on getting into the fields early in spite of the weather, had enough corn to weather the winter and some to spare.

An air conditioner for small homes has been invented that can be placed in a window and connected to the nearest source of electric current.

FIRST BIG DAY OF FAIR OPENS

Hanefeld Predicts 60,000 Will Attend Today: County Officials Guests.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 31 — With county and independent fair officials as special guests, the Ohio State fair went into one of its big days today with Director of Agriculture Earl H. Hanefeld predicting the attendance would exceed 60,000.

More than 30,000 women and children, admitted free, crowded into the grounds Monday with some 29,000 others for a 59,000 total.

One of the attractions today was the start of judging 85 boys and girls—all county champions—to decide the healthiest 4-H boy and girl in Ohio, the winners to get free trips to Chicago in December to compete at the national boys and girls club congress. The Ohio winners will be announced Friday.

A lightweight horse pulling contest, sheep shearing contest, grand circuit racing, dress revue, night horse show, "world on parade," livestock judging, and 4-H judging and demonstrations were other features.

With exhibit space at a premium this year and many prospective exhibitors turned away, Hanefeld announced a building program for the fairgrounds, subject to approval of the legislature.

Purchase of 25 acres of land and construction of four new buildings —including a large structure to house the junior fair—are included in the plan, which would cost about $750,000.

A committee of horsemen appointed by Hanefeld upheld a judge's decision giving the five-year-or-over Belgian stallion championship to a six-year-old owned by H. C. Horneman of Danville, Ill. Emil G. Buchsieb of Columbus filed the protest, claiming the winner was lame. The committee decided the lameness was only temporary and should not disqualify the horse. Buchsieb's stallion, Farceur du Marias, won second place.

The grand championship and senior stallion championship went to Timothy Farceur, three-year-old owned by C. O. House of Arcadia, Ind.

Charles A. Wentz & Sons of Upper Sandusky won first honors for Belgian studs with their Terror du Nord.

DOG OWNER FACES CHARGE IN COURT

Harry G. Bailey of 701 Roslyn court, charged by police with harboring a vicious dog, pleaded not guilty in municipal court this morning. Hearing was set for Friday at 10 a. m. and Bailey was released for appearance at that time.

Police Chief W. E. Marks said several complaints have been received about the dog. Bailey was arrested last night and was released to reappear for arraignment this morning.

The Italian council of ministers has approved a six-year plan for public works in Italian East Africa to cost two billion lire a year.

FIGHTS FLARE IN HOLY LAND

Country on Edge After Slaying of Three Jews and Two Arabs.

By The Associated Press

JERUSALEM, Aug. 31—Race torn Palestine was nervously on edge today while police and troops prepared to quell any violent sequels to disorders in which three Jews and two Arabs were killed.

There was widespread fear that the outbursts yesterday presaged another period of racial conflict and bloodshed in the Holy Land.

The flareup was attributed in most quarters to the political situation of a country torn for years between Jews and Arabs—a situation recently accentuated by Britain's proposal to partition the land into sovereign Jewish and Arab states.

Authorities told Palestine police and British troops to "stand by" and warned newspapers and others not to attempt incitement. Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope, the British high commissioner of Palestine, was hastily called back to Jerusalem from his summer camp in northern Palestine.

Besides those slain yesterday in shootings, two Arabs were wounded by a bomb explosion in Carmel market, on the Jaffa-Tel Aviv boundary. Another was wounded when fired on from ambush at Mount Scopus.

Shots from a passing motorcar splattered into a bus near Jerusalem, killing a Jewish passenger. A little later an Arab was killed on a Jerusalem street and police believed the shootings were connected.

Another Jew was found dead at the bottom of a well and another in a field. An Arab youth riding a bicycle was shot by a villager at Tel Aviv and died several hours later.

2 DRIVERS ARRESTED ON SPEEDING CHARGE

Michigan Motorist Posts Bond for Appearance; Marion County Man Fined.

Hugh Latham, 18, of Battle Creek, Mich., was arrested by Deputy Sheriff W. H. Willis yesterday afternoon on a charge of speeding through the traffic light at North Main and Fairground streets. Latham posted bond of $16.20 for his appearance in court Thursday at 3 p. m.

Willis said Latham drove through the intersection at 45 miles an hour.

William M. Longberry, 23, of Marion rural route No. 4, was fined $10 and costs in municipal court this morning on a charge of speeding. He pleaded guilty.

He was arrested last night about 8:30 on East Center street, where, police said, he was driving 45 miles an hour. His car was held for his appearance in court this morning.

COUPLE TO MARRY

National Teachers President Sees New Era of Harmony, Peace in Education

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW
Associated Press Writer

CASTLETON, Vt., Aug. 31 — Susan should have an easier time at school this year. Maybe she'll have to study just as hard, but pet teachers won't be arguing so much over the comparative merits of the textbooks she should read.

In fact, Susan can look forward to a peaceful era in education, if the predictions of Miss Caroline S. Woodruff, newly-elected president of the National Education association come true.

No more wrangling, she says. Progressives have become more conservative, and conservatives have taken on a progressive tinge. That brings them both to the long-awaited happy medium in education.

Each Side Wins Point

The Vermont woman—she heads the state teachers college at Castleton — characterizes the 1937-1938 school season thus:

1. Elementary and secondary schools will be less formalized—score one for the progressives.

2. Factual material will continue in the curriculum—score one for the conservatives.

3. First-hand experiences will supplement textbook dogma—it's a draw.

In addition, there'll be a great awakening among American educators, Miss Woodruff predicts. They're going to get away from petty details, like the kind of report cards to use, and the number of fire drills to hold, and take a look at educational methods in other countries.

Progress In Other Nations

The National Education association will lead the way, she hopes, and eventually will incorporate into American educational methods the best elements of education abroad.

Mexico should be a starting point, Miss Woodruff feels, for there under the Cardenas administration so much money is being spent on nationwide standardized education as on the army and navy. The aim of the government is to have every adult Mexican literate by 1940. Emphasis is also being laid on vocational courses.

Cuba, she says, is making great strides under Gen. Juan Batista, who has trained his soldiers to assist in making rural dwellers literate.

Prominent In Her Field

National differences should be forgotten, while educators explore systems of countries like these, Miss Woodruff says.

Probably her background accounts for her world view.

She holds the degrees of master and doctor of education, was the first woman president of the Vermont State Teachers association, has held innumerable offices in the National Education association and is consultant on the Educational Policies commission.

FOR HER A CALMER YEAR
Thousands like this little girl, pictured in a New York City school, soon will return to America's classrooms for a term in which, it is indicated teachers will spend more time teaching and less in debating pedagogical theories.

PROPHET
Miss Caroline S. Woodruff, new president of the National Education association, says the progressive-conservation split among teachers is narrowing.

"BRONX CHEER" DAMAGING.

By International News Service

HAVANA—The "Bronx cheer," locally known as a "little trumpet," has revealed it can be a lethal weapon. Luis Alvarez Rego, 27, told police he was drinking in a cabaret and decided to sing with the orchestra when a stranger "gave him the trumpet." The next I knew," complained Rego, "I was in the hospital with a broken arm."

BISHOP SETS COST OF BEING CHRISTIAN

By United Press

LONDON—It takes at least 50 shillings (about $12.50) a week to be a Christian, the Bishop of Chelmsford, Dr. Henry Wilson, whose income is $300 a month, believes.

Writing in the Diocesan Chronicle, he says that "if a man has less than 50 shillings a week life is so anxious that he has no time for much thought concerning high things; the strain of looking after his body absorbs all his time and interests."

On the other hand, Dr. Wilson believes the man with an income of more than $5,000 a year is in danger of becoming "the rich man who cannot enter into the Kingdom."

Your Health
BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Measles.

Our children are born to trouble, just as we were. It is their fate to suffer certain "catching" or infectious diseases. Some are worse than others, but measles is regarded as the most mild and trivial. It is true that, in itself, measles is a mild disease, but it should never be accepted as unimportant. Not infrequently measles leads to serious complications.

For example, pneumonia may follow an attack of measles, an ailment which is most common among children under five years of age. At this time of life, pneumonia is particularly serious. On this account, every precaution should be taken to guard the measles patient against complications.

There is another mistaken idea about measles. Years ago most mothers believed that certain childhood diseases were evils of childhood that could not be escaped. Indeed, many a mother actually exposed her child to the victim of some contagious disease so that the child would "catch" the ailment.

This was a dangerous practice. There is no such thing as "having to have" a childhood disease. The wise thing is to avoid such infections.

In one child the attack of measles may be trivial. When "caught" from the same case, it may be unusually serious in another. Some children possess certain "immunities" or natural powers of resistance against germs. Others do not possess this protection and, on taking the disease, run a disturbing and serious spell of illness.

It is best to take every precaution against having your youngster contract measles or other contagious disease. A child who is known to be afflicted with an infectious disease should be kept away from the other children. The mother or attendant should take every known precaution to prevent spreading the disease.

Often the true nature of the disease is overlooked. In its early stages measles closely resembles a simple head cold. The eyes are red and the nose runs. There may be a slight cough, with fever.

The disease is readily recognized at about the fifth to seventh day when a characteristic rash appears on the skin. It is seen first at the sides of the face, behind the ears and on the neck. This rash confirms the diagnosis and indicates the need of careful attention.

SCHOOL ORGANIZES TOLERANCE COURSE

Added To Regular Schedule In State of Minnesota.

By United Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Students at Lincoln junior high school are now taught regulation studies and in addition a new subject—tolerance.

Sponsors of this addition to the school curriculum include Principal William von Leverne, Rabbi David Aronson of Beth El synagogue, and Mrs. Angie Brown Morris and Mrs. Rivia Hurwitz, teachers.

An unusual situation at the school prompted adding of the new subject. The school is made up of 57 per cent Jewish youngsters and 43 per cent Gentile. Each group was discovered to be uninformed of the religious observances of the other.

"We were faced with a situation uncommon in a public school," Leverne said. "When our Jewish students were out of school during the New Year holidays, the Gentile pupils couldn't understand why.

Auto Club Again Ready To Aid Schoolboy Patrols

A sign of approaching school days for Marion city and county boys and girls came today in a report from M. E. Baldwin, secretary of the Marion Auto club, that supplies for the schoolboy patrols have been ordered and will be available shortly after the opening of the city schools on Wednesday, Sept. 8.

Among the supplies ordered are posters, which will be displayed in the schoolrooms throughout the city and county, and lesson pamphlets, which are to be distributed to teachers who conduct safety lessons.

The posters, belts, badges and other supplies will be furnished by the Auto club to the parochial, city and county schools. The belts and badges are on hand now, Mr. Baldwin said. The other supplies have been ordered through the Ohio State Automobile association.

Mr. Baldwin also reported that considerable work has recently been done in replacing old route signs and street warnings or installing signs at new locations. About 20 signs in all have been put up recently, he said.

Four new reflecting arrow signs have been installed, three of them at the ends of streets where numerous accidents have occurred, and the fourth at the intersection of Bellefontaine avenue and South Prospect street. The others were put up at the east end of Church street, the south end of Main street and the west end of Church street at Park boulevard.

New direction signs also have been put up at the Harding home and the Harding memorial.

FINDS TRACES OF OLD INHABITANTS

By United Press

PEORIA, Ariz.—The Salt River Valley was inhabited by pit-dwellers as far back as 500 A. D., according to evidence unearthed by Dr. Byron Cummings of the University of Arizona.

Ruins uncovered in the Salt River Valley desert region demonstrate conclusively the people of the early circular pits occupied the valley many centuries before those who built rectangular houses, Dr. Cummings said.

Dr. Cummings took back to the state museum at the university a large collection of prehistoric stone implements and pottery made by the early pit-dwellers, which were found a short distance north of here. The pottery was undecorated and poorly finished, the professor declared, indicating the art later was improved to a great degree of excellence.

Dr. Cummings said his discovery settled a long controversy over the issue of whether the Gila and Salt River drainage areas ever were inhabited by the earliest pit-dwellers.

Simplicity

ANNOUNCEMENT of new simplified forms for income taxation is a reminder that the new law plugging loopholes in the tax structure is so complicated that congressmen confessed they couldn't understand it.

Evidently, it isn't the forms which need to be simplified so much as the law which makes the forms necessary. Legislators are smart enough to know this, of course, but they don't seem to be able to do anything about it.

They pass a tax law. The purpose is to raise money. But somewhere there's too much friction, or not enough. So they pass another law amending the first law. More trouble develops, and another law amending the law which amended the first law is passed.

The final result is like one of those Rube Goldberg contraptions where you pull a lever to start a buzz saw which cuts a rope to release a weight which drops on a teeter board to throw aloft a parachute which unfolds to display a sign to remind the taxpayer that it's time to drop a dollar on the drum and be saved. It's the essence of simplicity.

Statement Of The Week

JAMES A. FARLEY occupies the high seat of political prophecy in the United States. His job is to know what's going on so he can peer into the future authoritatively. No one ever has denied that he's exceptionally good at it.

Last week, Mr Farley made this statement to the press:

> The people of the United States generally are for PPresident Roosevelts' program, whatever it is. They believe what he has done in the past justifies whatever he does in the future

That was another way of saying what the President, himself, says when he speaks of his mandate from the people. Because he has been elected twice by an overwhelming majority, Mr. Roosevelt reasons, he has absolute authority to proceed with his program as he sees fit. Neither the legislature nor the judiciary should assume the right to impede him

In other words, the sole question before the people last November was: Are You For Roosevelt? An affirmative majority was construed as a blanket mandate to proceed The Democratic platform was meaningful only to the exent that it could be stretched or shrunk to accommodate the leader of the party, the same situation that prevailed after 1932 The plebiscite was not on questions of policy, but on Mr Roosevelt.

No great amount of study is required to understand that this is not self-government but the beginning of a benevolent dictatorship The electorate gives approval to a man, not to the policies of a party. Both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Farley now are on record for that conception of politics. The situation, as they see it, has been described in simple words at last.

The issue of personal government, henceforth, can be discussed without apology.

Suicide on the Whangpoo.

EXTENT of the damage in Shanghai has become so vast that estimates of the monetary loss only begin to indicate the waste. A great commercial center rapidly is being disorganized and destroyed. Thousands of lives have been taken. A fortune in explosives already has been scattered over the area of devastation.

The Japanese, who seek control of Shanghai, the Chinese, who intend, apparently, to keep them from having anything to control, and the outsiders who are caught in the middle of the conflict, all are losing heavily. It is a demonstration of what modern warfare with long range artillery and bombing planes means to population centers.

Nobody can win; everybody loses. The act of suicide which the far east is committing on the Whangpoo has its modern European counterpart in the deliberate destruction of Madrid, and both of them have precedent in the sack of Rome by the Gauls. In more than 2,000 years, man's advance in wisdom, as far as war is concerned, can be measured by the fact that in 1937, instead of using torches and axes, he destroys his own handiwork much more rapidly with shrapnel and bombs.

A marrying squire at Evanston, Ill., held a bargain day recently, performing ceremonies at $1 each and throwing in a few groceries to boot, so that some of the happy couples possibly had $1.50 left over to start housekeeping or better still, to buy gasoline for a honeymoon trip

In the last 10 years the Japs have been making things pretty hot for China, which may be one explanation of the statistics which show that although 10 years ago the Chinese were afraid to eat ice cream it is now one of their favorite delicacies.

It begins to look as though baseball statistics will not be complete without a record showing what players ate the most breakfast cereals.

Farley Boasts of Prosperity Return But He Doesn't Explain Increase in Public Debt.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug 31—Postmaster General Farley, who has been making more political trips at government expense than any other official in fifty years—dedicating post offices and addressing local party organizations at the same time—is authority for the statement that the United States is enjoying today a "prosperity almost equal to that of the early days of 1929."

But neither Mr Farley nor anybody else in the administration has explained why, since prosperity is here, the expenses of the federal government are running many millions higher than last year and why the deficit is already larger than the deficit for the corresponding period of last year.

Theoretically, the administration has primed the pump and has spent nearly $18,000,000,000 in four years doing it The public debt was about $19,000,000,000 in 1933 and it is now $37,000,000,000. Back in March, 1933, Mr Roosevelt spoke of the three successive years of Hoover deficits and said to congress,

"For three long years, we have been on the road toward bankruptcy"

The present administration now has had four successive years of deficit, and the present year is running higher than the preceding one.

If Mr Roosevelt's warnings in 1933 and his reasoning with reference to impaired credit are accepted as sound, then America is threatened with fiscal bankruptcy. The prosperity of which Mr. Farley boasts is built then on the same quicksands as 1929.

The "priming of the pump" by government funds must sooner or later be replaced by private funds—private employment, if the administration has plans and is placing many barriers in the way of expansion or development of private business and industry.

Mr Roosevelt has made so many attacks on business and business men, has encouraged such class feeling and bitterness, and has allowed irresponsible groups to force prices upward to such an extent that the whole economic structure is being inflated in unhealthy fashion just as it was in 1928 and 1929 Only this time, it is the influence of government itself which is creating the unsound conditions.

Thus autumn will see the beginning of a price spiral that may go on for two or three years before the climax comes, but it is an inevitable trend The administration is forcing higher and higher the cost of living.

On every side, taxes are mounting and these are imbedded in the sales prices of goods and commodities The tax load of the nation is slowly approaching the breaking point. As prices rise, not all of the consumers are able to meet the increased costs of living. Fewer articles are bought, substitutes are used, old products are held longer before being replaced, and finally, as production is curtailed, unemployment starts again. Then prices will fall again and unused surpluses will grow.

The new deal has made no satisfactory answer, or any answer for that matter, to the contentions made by economists who foresee an economic collapse due to unsound governmental policies.

Some hint of what is in prospect is the frequent assertion that national income will be raised some day to $100,000,000,000 This can be done by inflation, but, once such an inflated level is reached, the deflationary trend will set in It is then, when prices fall, that devaluation may be tried again.

The manipulation of the monetary system and the continued issuance of printing press bonds with gold back of only a third of the securities issued—and none of the gold available for redemption to the citizen—means that some day the public will demand a showdown. Today the people believe the social security taxes are being put in a trust fund and the cash invested for them. Actually, as fast as the social security money comes in, it is used to pay current expenses of the government and an "I O U" is issued by the government to the so-called trust fund Those I O U's become part of the public debt and will not have any better status than any other printing press bonds and no higher market value or redemption value once government borrowing reaches a point beyond which the public thinks there will be no tax moneys or receipts in sufficient volume to meet these stupendous obligations.

In the midst of "prosperity," like 1929, there are reasons for worry, but nothing is being done about it by the Democratic administration—politicians never do anything to prevent panics, but they are very quick to shift the blame from themselves when panics come and hardships are widespread.

"Reprisals" Expected

Farley's Amnesty for Democratic Defaulters in Court Fight Not Viewed as Bona Fide.

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Aug 31—Shock troops of the court opposition do not take seriously Postmaster General Farley's assurance of "no reprisals" against defaulting Democrats

They expect the administration to try to take the political breeches off those Democratic senators — and house members—who had a part in defeating the court bill They believe that when wheelhorse Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania singled out Senators Wheeler of Montana, Burke of Nebraska, O'Mahoney of Wyoming and Holt of West Virginia as possible subjects of a "purge," he was speaking with administration knowledge if not indorsement Farley flatly denied such was the case telling a press conference that Guffey was speaking only for himself.

James A. Farley

These anti-court shock troops, including progressive Republicans among their number, expect to come to the rescue of any beleaguered Democratic members under administration fire. But there is a hitch

The principal opportunity of administration forces to damage Democratic senators or representatives comes during the primary or convention Then is when charges of disloyalty to the President can be used against them. The anti-court Democratic members cannot look for support from independents and progressive Republicans then. These will be voting in other primaries, if at all, or sharing in conventions of other parties.

And in this most trying hour, the support of progressive Republicans, for instance, might be well nigh fatal Nothing can hurt a candidate in a primary more than to have support of a rival political party

For instance, if Republican progressives who opposed the court bill should announce that they were going to work for the nomination of Senator Van Nuys of Indiana, a Democrat, it could just about be the end of all things political for Van Nuys, a court bill opponent. And already the wolves are after Van Nuys for Townsend of Indiana came from a conference with the President a few days back and said the people of Indiana would not support the senator

The result is that these Republican progressives who might like to support such men as Van Nuys must lie low during the toughest battle. Of course, after the nominating primaries and conventions, they might offer help where needed.

When former President Hoover said public support should be given to Democratic as well as Republican members of the congress who had opposed the court bill, it sent shivers of dismay down the backs of Democratic court foes. It was an "experiment noble in purpose" which promised to do them no good at all. Fervently they hoped Hoover would continue silently fishing in the Pacific northwest, or silently doing something else.

Of course at this point it must be recorded that Postmaster General Farley said the administration would take no part in the Democratic primaries. Yes, indeed, he said that.

Unquenchable Hope.

MOVIE MAKERS, publicity departments announce, will be ready for golden opportunity again this fall with an assortment of seasonal college pictures.

The titles suggest what they're going to be like—something about blocking that kick and life beginning on the campus. Next to newspapermen, collegians get the worst misrepresentation the incurable romanticists of Hollywood are capable of—and the sky's the limit.

It stands to reason, though, that college pictures make money, or they wouldn't be produced. Why, then, do they make money?

It's because of unquenchable hope. Youngsters gape at the movie version of the campus because they want it to be that way if they ever get there. Collegians are attracted because they wanted it to be that way and aren't ready yet to admit that it isn't. Ex-collegians go to see them because they are far enough removed to believe it almost was that way, and non-collegians, probably, turn out so they can be thankful for what they missed.

Shrewd men, these Hollywoodians.

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Wednesday, Aug 31, 1927. Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Col. F F. Minchin of England, with 61-year-old Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim as a passenger, started an attempted non-stop flight to the United States

Erection of the marble columns of the Harding memorial was nearing completion under supervision of C. H. Pruenfinger of Marion, in charge of the work for E Clifford & Son Co. of Columbus, the contracting firm

D. Charles Dee, former deputy Marion county clerk and assistant postmaster, died in the City hospital following an operation.

One hundred persons attended the annual party and twilight golf of the Marion Country club. The hosts were Mr. and Mrs. James R Smith, Mr and Mrs H. B Hane, Mr. and Mrs H. J Barnhart, Mr. and Mrs. Dan LaMarche and Mr. and Mrs Fred Haberman Jr.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Friday, Aug 31, 1917.

The federal aircraft production board and the war department started an airplane manufacturing program which ranked as the largest in the history of aviation up to this time. Congress had appropriated $600,000,000 for the undertaking.

Artillery duels continued over a wide front north of Verdun. After a long period of comparative inactivity along the lower end of the Arras front the Germans suddenly assaulted British positions around Arlex but were driven back.

D R Criseinger spoke at the annual Marion County Teachers' Institute and urged purchase of Liberty bonds. W. C. Sclanders was elected president of the institute for the coming year and Miss Mabel Twigg was chosen secretary.

The feature picture at the Marion theater was "The Guardian," with June Elvidge, Montagu Love and Arthur Ashley in the leading roles and at the Grand, Jack Pickford, Louise Hoff and Theodore Roberts had the lead in "What Money Can't Buy"

War On Underworld

Prosecutor Dewey Sets Example Which Stirs New York Into Finish Fight With Crime.

By International News Service

NEW YORK — Spurred by the success of Special Prosecutor Thomas Dewey's racket-busting activities and confronted by an ever-growing "crime bill," New York today is taking a more determined stand than ever before in its efforts to smash the underworld and make of this city the most crime-free metropolis in the country.

"War to the death" has been declared upon the underworld, and law enforcement agencies are appealing strongly for public cooperation in the fight. One of the strongest bids for public aid in this regard is contained in a 38-page publication prepared and distributed by the New York county district attorney's office

Although it perforce deals with crime problems arising in New York, the publication, entitled "The Human Side of the People's Case," treats with matters of wide interest, particularly with regard to crime and the criminal as encountered in cities all over the country

$64,000,000 Crime Bill

The paper, in an article by Comptroller Frank J Taylor, places New York's "crime bill"—the sum expended in the detection, capture and prosecution of criminals—at more than $64,000,000 for 1937. The comptroller offers no panaceas to reduce the "crime bill," and his only comment is:

"It is no part of my work to philosophize, to preach sermons, or to show to what useful purpose this vast sum might otherwise be put . . . it is my business to deal in facts and figures"

But elsewhere in "The Human Side," Percy C Magnus, president of the New York Board of Trade, comments on crime and the public's relation to crime. Deploring the public's disinterest in and general refusal to co-operate with the district attorney's office and hte police, he states.

Cooperation Deemed Essential

"Cooperation would pay dividends in actual cash far in excess of any other investment . . . It would seem, therefore, not only reasonable but the most desirable thing in the world for business men to cooperate with the district attorney and his staff to the fullest possible measure.

"Why isn't this done? In the first place, all people, and that includes business men, are frequently moved by prejudice. Law and law enforcement means trouble, and business men want to keep out of trouble. Executives feel that they know their own business pretty well, but they do not know the law Courts, district attorneys, and police force means that they become in some manner engaged with the law Business men write off countless thousands of dollars in unpaid debts, rather than institute suits They would rather sustain the loss than invoke the law.

Business Attitude Handicap

"Prejudice against invoking the law has been one of the great handicaps in the way of complete cooperation between business and the district attorney's office Business men must come to realize that the amounts involved now reach to such stupendous proportions that they must lay aside their aversions to legal processes and help the prosecutor in his efforts to help business."

Fear of reprisals from racketeers and other wrongdoers is another deterrent to public cooperation with law enforcement agencies. Magnus asserts The merchant, he writes, fails to prosecute the shoplifter for fear unfavorable publicity will hurt his business The business man refuses to prosecute labor racketeers through fear his place of business will be picketed. Magnus adds

"Other business men have heard threats of bodily harm, not only to themselves but to members of their families, if they appear as complainants against certain types of criminals Being placed between the horns of a dilemma, the demands of tribute on the one hand and the possible danger of persecution on the other, they conclude that the least danger lies in meeting the demands of the racketeer."

Failing in Public Duty

Complaining that too many citizens "have utterly failed in their public duty," Magnus contends,

"Business men must awaken to the fact that a new day is dawning, and that a relentless war is being waged against crime. Public officials all over the land are aroused to a new sense of their responsibility. They have the staff, they have the experience, and they have the determination to weed out the social parasite. They are doing a magnificent job . . . under a very great handicap. They are not receiving the full measure of cooperation and support . . . they have every right to expect."

Magnus argues that the police and other law agencies will fully protect the courageous citizen who presses charges against racketeers.

New York's 'crime bill" of more than $64,000,000, Magnus points out, dwindles to nothing "in comparison with the other cost to society imposed by criminals" He does not attempt to estimate the incalculable "crime bill" of the nation, "running into the billions which society has complacently paid"

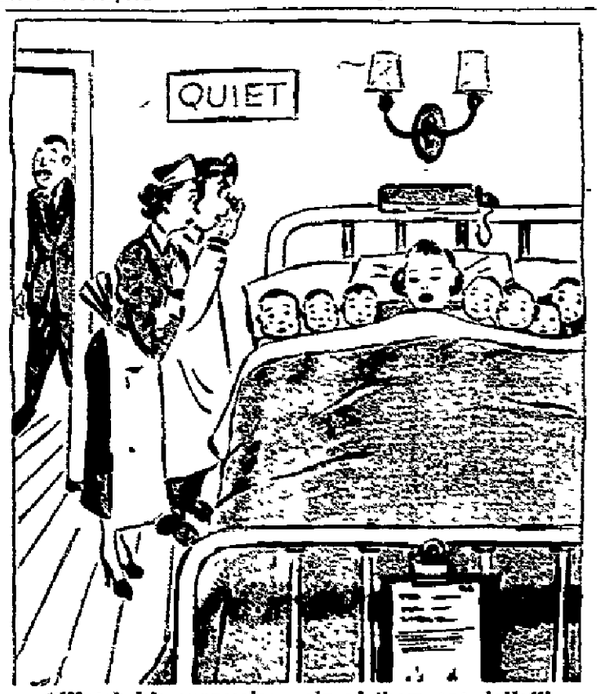
In the same vein runs the article by Henry Epstein, solicitor general of the state of New York, who characterizes the law violator as an official in an "inner government." He writes.

"In wars against nations, one's enemy can be identified by uniform, location, appearance, language and many other ways. In the war against invisible government, the enemy dresses like us, lives with us, walks in our midst and is only identified in flagrant attempts to violate the laws under which normal people seek to live—and then only when caught.

Citizens Must Awaken

"We are at war with an inner government which flaunts law, violates and laughs at liberty, life and property. The courts grind out sentences; the police move as rapidly as they can—but of what avail are courts and police if the citizens do not rise to their own responsibility for the growing menace to community peace and safety?

"In the last analysis, it is the mass of citizenry who must speak with the voice of thunder to silence those who would destroy orderly society."



"Watch his expression—six of them are dolls!"

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug 31—Writing is the only thing I know that has innumerable successful practitioners who honestly loathe it. Arthur Somers Roche, who turned out such exciting mystery stories, would seize upon any excuse to delay the actual telling of his yarn.

Every magazine editor has several top flight stars who have to be constantly cuddled and coaxed to do their stuff. It is not laziness, for they will chop wood, cut grass or anything to avoid it. Sometimes they will delay until actually hungry.

Irvin Cobb detests the business but used to don the figurative hair shirt every day from 9 a. m. to 1 p m Edna Ferber whies from the typewriter until the very last moment and then grudgingly turns in what is usually a swell performance Ditto, Gelett Burgess.

Sinclair Lewis is all enthusiasm discussing a story but the actual getting on the job is sheer torture. Theodore Dreiser regards writing as the hardest drudgery. Somerset Maugnam is always telling his friends that his most recent story will be his last. And so it goes.

Last night he came to the next table in a restaurant, a bit bald and indulging the darting glances of the philanderer With him was a practised charmer, with bright red nails, long green jade cigaret holder and chandelier ear-rings to here. Busy Printers

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31—Five Chinese language newspapers, all dailies, are working overtime to keep San Francisco's Chinatown informed on the war in the Far East.

It's no easy job.

It takes 6000 separate pieces of type to print Chinese, and every line is hand-set. The case in which it is kept are a good hundred times as large as an American printer's case. The typesetter gets plenty of legwork as well as footwork.

Free War Extra

"The Young China," local organ of the Nationalist party, was out with the first extra. It was a sheet 8 by 12 inches announcing the capture of Fengtai and was distributed free.

There are some 20,000 Chinese in San Francisco, and all are in a bellicose mood. A stream of letters and telegrams urging Gen. Chiang Kai-shek to fight it out with Japan has gone to the homeland.

"The Chinese of San Francisco are mostly Cantonese, and Cantonese are the backbone of the Nationalist government," said John Yenall Chin, a younger leader in the local colony.

"We will certainly raise a fund for Red Cross work and whatever war materials may be needed. China has plenty of man power so there probably will be no recruiting here, except for aviators"

Factions Unite

When the Japanese invaded Shanghai the Six Companies—which are not a commercial concern but a benevolent society—started an aviation school here for Chinese youth. The project was given up but some of the Chinese went on to become pilots.

Although most of Chinatown's population is American-born, nearly everyone here has relatives in China and a heavy correspondence is carried on.

Although Gen. George McClellan won much acclaim for his work in organizing the Army of the Potomac, many persons felt he did not know how to use the army he had built up and had lost many opportunities by overestimating the strength of the enemy and underestimating that of his own men. This "over-cautiousness" resulted in his removal from command.

The seriousness of the situation at that time, however, is illustrated by one of McClellan's reports dated Aug. 31, 1862, which showed that on that date a detachment of federal troops was captured near Fairfax Court House, Va., not far from Washington, itself, while soon afterward General Lee invaded Maryland.

U. S. OFFERS LUSH LIVING TO POSTOFFICE PUSSIES

Felines Used To Keep Rodents from Cheese and Other Foods Is Fed from Miscellaneous Fund.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31—Put it down as a catty story—but the postoffice department has a staff of felines feeding off federal funds.

Here's the situation:

Where the corner drug store sells more goods than drugs, Uncle Sam's postoffices handle a lot of things besides letters.

Mice, for instance.

Years ago the department recognized the rat and mouse menace and a long-forgotten postmaster wrote to a long-forgotten official asking what to do about it.

Instructions from Washington were simply get a cat.

The postmaster got a cat as did others and then arose the problem of footing the food bill.

Since there was no food for federal cats item in the budget, instructions were given to take it out of miscellaneous, and ever since then the cats have been living off miscellaneous—some of them even getting fat on it.

All postoffices don't have cats—only first and second class offices are authorized to buy cat food out of miscellaneous, and some of these prefer other methods.

They buy poison or hire human rat-exterminators.

There are 1,136 first class postoffices and 3,404 second class. That's 4,540 potential cats. Officials estimate there are half that number living off Uncle Sam.

Dogs aren't allowed to roam through postoffices and the only overtime comes at Thanksgiving and Christmas when people are mailing a lot of food.

SHORT WEEK FOR WOMEN SEEN INCREASING JOBS

Pennsylvania Law Calling for 44 Hour Maximum Will Go Into Effect Tomorrow.

By The Associated Press

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 31—Pennsylvania, first to fix a maximum work week of 44 hours for women by law, expects it to lop 10 per cent of the unemployed from the relief rolls.

The eight-hour day and five-and-one-half-day week for all women workers becomes effective Wednesday.

The labor department at Washington said only two other states have regulations comparable to Pennsylvania's women's work law. Oregon has a 45-hour week for women by order of the state welfare commission, while Ohio has a 48-hour week for women in manufacturing.

Out of the Pennsylvania law, passed this week, the secretary of labor and industry, Ralph M. Bashore, sees a way to ease the state's financial burden for its needy.

The state now is caring for about 450,000, on which it will spend $100,000,000 in the next two years.

For days the department of labor and industry has been threshing through the requests of some industries for exemptions—canning, restaurant and hotel, telephone companies for example.

The service industries, involving the hotels and restaurants, Bashore said, asked principally for the privilege of averaging the hours over peak periods for a limited number of weeks. This is to take care of seasonal rushes.

COURT NEWS

Files Answer

J. W. Free filed his answer in common pleas court today to the petition of Rose F. Barnhart for appointment of a receiver and an accounting of proceeds of a 200-acre farm tract which Mr. Free rented on a share basis. He states that all the conditions and terms of the rent agreement are stated in her petition and denies that he ever sold propery jointly owned without her consent. He denies that he contracted debts without her consent and that any jointly owned property is in danger of removal except as provided in the agreement.

He asks dismissal of her petition. Mr. Free also filed a motion asking the court to vacate his appointment of Richard Barnhart as receiver, stating that the reasons Mrs. Barnhart asked for a receiver were not for preservation of the property. He said the court abused its discretion in appointing the receiver without notice.

AILURES SHOW SLIGHT DECREASE IN SCHOOLS

Compiled by Supt. Hudson Records Percentage of Passing Grades for Last Year.

...ght reduction in the num- ...of failures among grade school ...s in Marion city schools was ...n in the school year ended ...ne, according to a report ...ted to the city board of edu... by Supt. C. A. Hudson.

...ures among pupils in the first ...grades this year amounted to ... per cent, as compared to an ... per cent in the year before. ...number of grade school pu... also dropped, falling from 3,470 ...-46 to 3,206 this year.

...al promotions were given to ... per cent of the elementary pu... and 84.4 per cent were given ...lar promotions.

...he percentage of failures at ...h grade school building follows: ...enwood — 4.6; Pearl — 4.7; ...n Main — 5.8; Forest Lawn — Washington — 8.5; Oakland — Glenwood—12.7; Otley—12.9; ...—15.5, and Silver—21.9.

The total percentage of failures ...still too high," Mr. Hudson com... ...ed. "With the present pupil-...her load, with most of the sub...ard children not segregated and ...the present accepted plan of ...yearly grade progression, it is doubtful if much reduction in the number can be expected."

Failures in the junior and senior high schools were listed by subjects, with no failures reported among 83 per cent of the enrollments at Harding High school and the junior high schools. The percentage of sophomore and junior students at the Edison building having no failures was 71.6, the report states.

Compared with the year before the percentage of failures was .5 lower in the junior high schools, 3.3 per cent higher at Harding and 3 per cent lower in the senior high subjects at Edison.

Oddly enough, more ninth grade students met their Waterloo in English courses than in mathematics, Latin, algebra, science or other generally accepted "tough" courses. Nearly 10 per cent of all students taking English courses failed, while only 5.8 per cent failed in algebra, 7.4 in Latin and 5.4 in applied mathematics.

Eighth graders failed most frequently in mathematics and seventh graders in social science, the report shows.

An experiment which is likely to reduce the number of failure in the primary grades in the next few years was conducted among first-grade children last year, Mr. Hudson reported.

Reading aptitude tests were given to all first-grade pupils, and those not qualifying satisfactorily were placed in special groups known as pre-primary classes. No regular first-grade program was followed, the efforts of the teachers being directed largely along the line of preparation for first grade work. The 56 children in these groups will enter regular first-grade classes in September and, from all indications, should stand much better chances of doing good work with a minimum of failures.

VACATION ENDS SOON FOR PUPILS IN OHIO

State Official Says Enrollment This Year Will Show Decline.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30—School bells next week will end the long summer vacation for Ohio pupils but, D. H. Sutton, finance chief of the state department of education, estimated that fall term registrations would be about 110,000 fewer than last year.

Sutton said that approximately 1,307,000 boys and girls attended Ohio high school and elementary classes last year and predicted this year's total would be only about 1,197,000, largely because of a declining birth rate.

Some 41,000 teachers will be on hand to welcome pupils, Sutton said.

The finance chief said that attendance in 1900 was 829,000 and that the average teacher's salary then was $39.88 a month as compared with $169 for a similar period in 1936-37 for high school teachers and $138 for instructors is starting its second year.

The school foundation program, which Sutton said guarantees $45 for each elementary pupil and $67.50 for each high school student's education during the year, starting its second year.

Sutton said that in 1936-37 the state contributed 36 per cent of the cost under the foundation program and that local assistance totaled 44 per cent. Transportation also was provided by the state.

"The school foundation program tends to keep children in school longer," Sutton asserted, "and provides them with a better education than under the old system."
